As 101.7 WFNX Boston gave its farewell earlier tonight in preparation of Clear Channel taking over the frequency following its purchase of the station, we now know the identity of the station that will soon take its place. Weve already seen multiple decoy domain registrations, especially after the filing by Clear Channel for the WHBA [...]

Striking Canadian broadcasters launch online radio station
Radio-Info.com
A handful of Canadian radio workers, who have been on strike for a month and miss being on-air, have launched their own online station. Its the "home of the seven striking radio employees from K100, 98.9 Big John FM and 93 CFBC," as they proudly say.

By SCOTT FYBUSH As regular readers of this feature well know, we spend much of each summer visiting the in-laws in Fort Wayne, Indiana  and indeed, thats where we find ourselves as we post this weeks installment. But as close as northeast Indiana is to the Michigan state line  its barely an hour [...]

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting!  This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   - 1.1 Invitation to participate
   - 1.2 Charter
   - 1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   - 2.1 Newsgroup focus
   - 2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   - 2.4 Programming discussions
   - 2.5 Commercial postings
   - 2.6 Pirate radio
   - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   - 3.2 Civility

  - 3.3 Posting form
  - 3.4 Excessive quoting
  - 3.5 Pseudonyms
  - 3.6 Signature files
  - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
  - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
  - 4.1 Crossposting
  - 4.2 Valid "From" address
  - 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet

A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

--------------------------------------------------------------

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines,
please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/59087/cbs-to-launch-fm-sports-in-atlanta/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=cbs-to-launch-fm-sports-in-atlanta

CBS will flip AAA 92.9 Dave-FM WZGC Atlanta to Sports this fall. As first reported by Rodney Ho of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, station GM Rick Caffrey told the stations staffers that the move will occur in late September or early October. Terry Foxx, PD of sister 93.7 The Fan KDKA-FM Pittsburgh has been named PD [...]

If there are any Old Time Radio listeners in this group I would be interested in your input. Using creativity, production, acting, writing and your totally unobjective personal taste as the criteria, rank your top ten old time radio programs.  Mine are:

1. The Adventures of Harry Lime
2. Crime Classics
3. Mr. President
4. Suspense
5. Frontier Gentleman
6. The Whistler
7. Gunsmoke
8. I Was a Communist For the FBI
9. You Are There
10. Unit 99

Points will be awarded inversely e.g. 10 points for a #1 ranking, 9 points for #2, etc. Totals will be calculated weekly for one month or however long interest in the topic remains.

Leader in the clubhouse:
The Adventures of Harry Lime: 10 points.

Incidentally a fantastic website devoted to Old Time Radio is http://www.otrcat.com/index.php/  I have no stake in the site, just feel they deserve a plug for their contribution to keeping the OTR hobby alive and well. One could spend many evenings reading the well written synopses and histories of hundreds of OTR programs produced during that wonderful era.

I am surprised that Dimension X / X Minus One does not get a place in your top ten list.

In terms of production and acting quality, the NBC University Theater of the Air should also be included.

Here is a list of OTR stations available over the Internet.

Additions and corrections are always welcome.

Broadcast Network For Independent Artists (BN4IA) began programming on May 19, 2012 to over 200 terrestrial (over the air) radio stations around the world and five internet radio stations. Since BN4IA began programming, they have picked up additional radio stations including Radio Brandy, which provides programming to over 200 college dorms in the U.S. and Indie 98 FM in Los Angeles and it�s affiliates in over 40 countries. The company also broadcast by satellite to over 25 Million home in North and Central America and this month will begin broadcasting to over 200 Million homes and businesses in Europe and the Middle East. The company broadcasts the music of independent recording artists from around the world on a 24/7 basis.

Independent recording artists who have been added to rotation on the BN4IA include Canadian artist Beatrice Love and her songs �Cold Shoulder� and �Genuine�; Elina Vasiljeva from Latvia and her song � I Can See Changes�; �Taken Away� by the English band, The Particles; Snez and her song �Green� from Australia and there are an additional 12 independent recording artist from the international market being added by the end of June. U.S. independent recording artists who are receiving song requests include the band Leadership by Assault from Seattle and their song �Sober Up� and the song by Cutting Edge called �Venomous Love Affair� which also entered the national digital radio charts top 200 last week at #88 and the international independent digital charts at #25. The biggest surprise is the �fun, quirky, alternative� band Naked In Public and their song �Gray Haired Lady�; a song about Gray Haired Ladies, of course. BN4IA congratulates Doug Fergus and his band, Naked In Public for having the most requested song of the week.

Most of the recording artists jumping on BN4IA love the idea that the company offers a store on their site so listeners can buy the songs directly from the station as opposed to having to search for the song on the internet. According to Music Director Ricky Ric, �the bands also love the fact the listeners of the radio network dictate which songs receive the most radio airplay on BN4IA�. Ricky Ric also stated �some of the bands with the higher rotation are beginning to accomplish this by letting their fans know to do song request and purchase songs at the BN4IA music store each week�. Bands receive points each time their song is requested or when someone makes a purchase of a song or album. �It is better to let the listeners dictate what is played on the radio as opposed to having some corporation dictate it� according to Ricky Ric.

Broadcast Network For Indie Artists was formed by the independent band, Cutting Edge to help independent recording artist around the world to expose their music around the world through the stations of the network. To submit songs to BN4IA or to listen to the station, simply go to http://www.bn4ia.com

You can also listen to BN4IA by going to Shoutcast and entering bn4ia in the search bar.

http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/netgnomes/58576/gen-x-to-twist-in-tulsa/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=gen-x-to-twist-in-tulsa

A flip to Country Twister appears imminent at Clear Channels Gen X Radio 106.1 KTGX Tulsa. Twister1061.com was registered yesterday by Clear Channel and currently has an artificial redirect to sister South 106.1 WSTH Columbus, GA. However the actual source of where the domain will be pointed can be seen here. This will give Tulsa [...]

Editors note: This weeks column was originally presented September 2, 2011. Its here again this week because this beautiful museum is now fighting for its life, thanks to the bankruptcy of its landlord, Inner City Broadcasting. The California Historical Radio Society needs to raise $750,000 within the next week or so to make a last-ditch [...]

How Radio Failed State College Part 2

http://radioinsight.com/blog/blogs/58622/how-radio-failed-state-college-part-2/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=how-radio-failed-state-college-part-2

In November 2011, while State College rioted as Joe Paterno was fired due to the Jerry Sandusky rape allegations State College radio was nowhere to be heard on the subject. Tonight, Sanduskys allegations became convictions and yet again radio was nowhere to be seen. The following Tweets sum up how we found the State College [...]

Streetz 94.5 Atlanta Debuts

http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/58619/streetz-94-5-atlanta-debuts/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=streetz-94-5-atlanta-debuts

94.5 W233BF Social Circle, GA has completed its move-in to Atlanta and has launched as Urban Streetz 94.5. As you may recall, the Streetz format previously appeared at 102.9 W275BK for a few days in April 2009. Extreme Media Group head Steve Hedgwood and his nephew Keenan Heard bought that translator without the knowledge of [...]

http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/netgnomes/58635/two-columbia-sc-stations-planning-revamps/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=two-columbia-sc-stations-planning-revamps

As Davis Medias Hometown Columbia prepares to close on their acquisition of two Columbia, SC stations from Double O Radio, the company has shown its cards for revamps of the stations. We cant fully determine from the domain registrations if new formats are on the way for either station. For what is now Soft AC [...]

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
    - 1.1 Invitation to participate
    - 1.2 Charter
    - 1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
    - 2.1 Newsgroup focus
    - 2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
    - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
    - 2.4 Programming discussions
    - 2.5 Commercial postings
    - 2.6 Pirate radio
    - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
    - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
    - 3.2 Civility
    - 3.3 Posting form
    - 3.4 Excessive quoting
    - 3.5 Pseudonyms
    - 3.6 Signature files
    - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
    - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
    - 4.1 Crossposting
    - 4.2 Valid "From" address
    - 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America.

Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
- Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

The Boston market is abuzz today over the registration of Talk1017.com redirecting to Clear Channels Talk 1200 WXKS. Only one problem. There is nothing to connect the domain to Clear Channel. The domain was registered anonymously using GoDaddys Domains By Proxy and is hosted on Godaddys server using a frame based redirect to display content [...]

Bell Media has applied to the CRTC to flip Sports TSN 990 CKGM Montreal to French Sports RDS 990. The move would be made to get Bell under regulatory ownership limits in Montreal caused by its acquisition of Astral Media earlier this year. The CRTC limits stations in a market by language so moving CKGM [...]

The deal to bring WABD Mobile to 97.5, will also bring K-Love programming into Nashville. EMF Broadcasting is swapping the license of 97.5 WLVM Mobile to Cumulus for Classic Hits 97.1 WRQQ Belle Meade/Nashville. WRQQ is one of two Nashville stations Cumulus was required to spin-off in order to complete its merger with Citadel Broadcasting [...]

The editors of the radio-info.com and radioworld.com sites have both declined to have rec.radio.broadcasting forward daily RSS feeds of their news articles.

One of the challenges of other possible news feeds is to keep them mostly confined to broadcast radio, and not TV or shortwave or scanner listening.  The dcrtv.com site is really great for Washington DC area broadcasting news, but as far as I know, does not support RSS.  Sites might be interested in allowing rec.radio.broadcasting to abstract their feeds (either Fair Use or something close to it), and RSS is usually the best and easiest way to abstract updates at web sites automatically.

There are at two profiled feeds of the FCC Daily Digests to newsgroups that I know of.  One for amateur radio (Part 97) information, the other for radio and TV broadcasting in the Bay Area of California (San Francisco, San Jose, etc.).  Tracking FCC actions for all broadcast radio stations nationwide could be quite voluminous and noisy.  What kinds of pattern matches would you propose be profiled for rec.radio.broadcasting? New stations? Significant enforcement actions? Sometimes that's hard to do in a way that is useful and manageable for the readership without a lot of reading and manual culling by an editor. We might need an interested volunteer.

>There has to be a number of ways to generate posts to this group that

The original moderator of this newsgroup, the late Bill Pfeiffer, coordinated a "Radio Watchers" program, where individuals around the country, and world, would follow radio stations in their markets, and sometimes surrounding regions, and report back to rec.radio.broadcasting. Scott Fybush, the author of the Fybush Media articles, was one of the original Radio Watchers, for the northeastern U.S., and is probably one of the few remaining who continue to provide updates to the net.

Given that the moderation system for rec.radio.broadcasting can support several automated options, including posting from newsreaders, E-mail submissions, web site scraping, and now RSS, it would appear that it might be technically easier to capture and post the information, even automatically. What would be the remaining challenge would be to find good sites that would consent to relay of their material, and good watchers to submit their own local observations and analysis.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files
   3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters

* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/58459/kxli-las-vegas-sold/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=kxli-las-vegas-sold

Aurora Media has sold Jelli Rock 94.5 KXLI Moapa, NV to Radio Activo Broadcasting for $3 Million. Radio Activo Broadcasting has already placed job postings looking for Spanish speaking air personalities in Southern Nevada so a format change looks likely with the sale. Aurora Media attempted to sell KXLI on EBay earlier this year. Despite [...]

Opinion: WITF-FM-89.5 ditches classical music for talk radio
Carlisle Sentinel
On that day, our local public radio station, WITF-FM-89.5, will cease broadcasting classical music in favor of an all-news, all-talk program lineup. The announcement last Friday came as a shock. I had received a survey from WITF asking, ...

Text and photos by SCOTT FYBUSH Even after twenty years of traveling back and forth to see the in-laws in Indiana, there are still corners of the Hoosier State where your intrepid correspondent hadnt ventured. In our continuing effort to fill in those blank spaces on our big map of Indiana, we partnered up in [...]

Is Something Happening Now In Chicago?

Posted: 18 Jun 2012 08:54 AM PDT
http://radioinsight.com/blog/headlines/netgnomes/58559/is-something-happening-now-in-chicago/?utm_source=rss&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=is-something-happening-now-in-chicago

A pair of domain registrations indicate something is afoot at Clear Channels Spanish AC Mega 95.5 WNUA Chicago. Anonymous domain registrations were made on Friday for 955ElPatron.com and 955NowChicago.com. Both of them were moved to Clear Channels nameservers this morning. The former would indicate a shift to Regional Mexican, which has been rumored on and [...]

Some friends who work in the advertising business and I have been brainstorming about the future of radio broadcasting and are documenting what we think is going to happen.  See http://Radio.RebuildingA=fterFailure.com/

What do you think?  Are we more right than wrong, or are we totally off base?

I love radio. I=92m an avid listener, pundit, critic, historian and technologist. I believe traditional broadcast radio will morph into something new and incredible and we're looking for a way to position for future opportunity.

Most people still working in =93corporate=94 radio today are probably in their last radio job and may not know it.  The future of commercial radio broadcasting is bleak, at best.  The bubble has burst, and we have an emerging opportunity to rebuild.

Producers of compelling content will ultimately succeed in attracting audience to sell to advertisers if they relentlessly promote their product. My theory is that many of the same principles used to attract radio audience 40 years ago will be reinvigorated in next generation broadcasting.  Personality driven radio is an incomparable way to build and maintain time spent listening. The business model will change. The barrier to entry will be lower, and the corresponding revenue may be so low that corporate conglomerates may not even want to play. But that=92s not to say there won=92t be money to be made.

Internet content delivery will reach automobiles in just a few years, and traditional over-the-air delivery will be changed forever when it does.  This will be the final nail in AM-FM radio=92s coffin, at least in the USA.  FCC licensees will be relegated to mere digital transport providers.  Content providers will buy transit from competing ISPs. The branded product will not have FCC call letters. 4G LTE will become the next standard broadcast band.

My money is on next-generation broadcasting, and it has very little to do with radio frequency transmitters and receivers. Thanks for your interest in my theory.  I look forward to your comments.

This has not only already started, some of the more enlightened broadcasters have been developing a variety of Internet distributed services. I know quite a few people who are still "broadcast talent", working to develop their relevance in terrestrial broadcasting's "replacement"...which is, as we speak, being developed by none other than the broadcasters themselves. Not everyone in the radio entertainment business has his head in the sand!

It's already well-underway. It's a safe bet; your money's risk is minimal.

Can you give a bit more info on that, John? Are you saying that some broadcasting companies are not just providing an Internet stream of their AM/FM feeds, but are developing Internet-only products? I know that some stations already offer additional Internet streams (KLIV used to, but I don't see them there now), but it sounds like you're talking about something way beyond that.

That's basically it. The interface will allow the listener to configure his listening and locality (it is geographically sensitive, and provides useful local features in the programming. In the situation that I am thinking of, it is a work in progress, but it IS definitely moving forward (to the point of building server rooms just for the programming and commercial content origination. Since it is being done by radio owners, it will dovetail with real radio stations and all of the content will come from the broadcast entity. There is no need, however, for the web streams to simply simulcast the air signals.

I'm really NOT being coy: I don't actually have a full grasp of the big picture and as such I'm certainly not qualified to be a spokesperson for any particular project. And of course, there will be competitive issues until everyone starts doing it.

Alternative delivery (not in the broadcast band) is the future, either in cooperation with or possibly as a replacement to terrestrial broadcasting. My only point in my reply to the original poster was to assure him and others that his revolutionary concepts have actually been in development by entities who have to power to bring them to fruition.

Launch of these things is at hand.

Look at Sheer Flannel's "I-Heart-Radio", CBS's similar offering.
They're using content-delivery nets (I think Ando or LimeLight).

Other big outfits like (ahem) 1e100 and the Purple Palace have their own
CDN's in place

(They might one day use IP multicast but not enough people trust it right now.)

Alternative delivery of programming is a great thing, and it's a thing with a future.

The problem with broadcast radio, though, isn't the delivery system, it's the programming.

If you have programming that nobody wants to listen to, they won't want to listen to it via alternative methods either.

The primary asset that traditional broadcasters have isn' their delivery system, but their programming.  The problem is that too many of them have neglected that for far too long.

>Launch of these things is at hand.

That's great, and I will be able to adjust a channel selector on a networked appliance and listen to Smoke on the Water on 300 of the 500 available channels.... and the other 200 will be playing Hotel California...

No problem. I was just looking for a little more info. I'll learn more as time goes on.

It's not the medium; it's the message. After Adam Corolla was fired from KLSX in Los Angeles his podcasts took off. By the second week he had 2.4 million downloads, a far larger audience than he'd had on the radio.

I'd say not to think of radio as the technology but as the content. In other words, it matters not to the listener whether the "radio program" they heard came to them via a 20kw FM transmitter on a mountaintop, an IP address on their Blackberry, or a podcast, except for the ease of listening. For some people some formats are easier to listen to than others. It's far easier for me to listen to a stream of "This American Life" than to listen at any of the times our local PRI affiliates.

For instance, I was talking with the teenaged son of a computer customer of mine. He was very familiar with WNYC's "Radiolab", but had never heard it on the radio. The podcast was recommended to him by a friend and he's been a faithful listener ever since.

Many of the teen-aged and college-aged kids I know, even those involved in a college radio station, don't own radios, unless they're in cars.  To them, a computer or smart phone IS a radio.  Streaming, or an iPod, are pretty much the only ways they listen to anything.

Yes, pretty much since the mid-nineties conglomerate buy up of stations.
Somewhere along the line, plug-and-play formats became the norm, which in turn gave rise to the proliferation of syndications. Why produce programs at stations all over the country when you can just do one and send it to those same stations?

Over the past fifteen years or so, stations have been acquired for their "stick value", the local talent fired, and a satellite dish installed.
Station owners were looking at every gimmick they could find to keep their minds off the need to tune their programming content.

Unfortunately, there are still owners who haven't learned that third-string syndicated programming isn't going to cut it. My opinion is that they won't be in the picture much longer.

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form

- 3.4 Excessive quoting
- 3.5 Pseudonyms
- 3.6 Signature files
- 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
- 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
- 4.1 Crossposting
- 4.2 Valid "From" address
- 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)

* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

3.2 Civility

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

------------------------------------------------------------

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines,
please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

It's both the programming and the system, or the business model. The non-comm business model seems to be working nicely, thank you, but the commercial advertising-driven business model doesn't work well for an aging population, though it worked just fine for us when we were 18 to 34. And that's partly a matter of the technology and its inability to charge for content. Thus, "free" stations have to go after an ever-shrinking marketplace and wind up imitating something else already out there.

I'm not sure about that.

I live in a town where the number one radio station in the area is an AM daytimer with a "music of your life" format.  Station operating costs are minimal other than live operators for two short shifts (one of which is handled by the GM).  They have no shortage of advertising revenue.  This is precisely the sort of station that is supposed to be going bankrupt, but because they provide programming specifically oriented to the local population, they make money.

>Thus, "free" stations have to go after an ever-shrinking marketplace and wind up imitating something else already out there.

The advantage of the new distribution methods is that it makes it possible to support small populations of listeners who want very specific programming. Here in rural Virginia, there is no way that an all-Calypso station could ever make a profit.  However, I can go on the internet and find several streaming Calypso services.

The disadvantage of the new distribution methods is that it makes it impossible to support small populations of listeners in a limited geographical area.  If I want to hear local news and traffic I probably won't be going it on a large internet service.  If I want to hear local bands I probably won't be.  If I want to hear local sports events, I probably won't be (although that too might be changing).

When broadcast stations attempt to compete by doing something that internet services can do better, they will lose.  When they attempt to compete by doing something that internet services cannot do as well, they will win.

Broadcast listeners are going to go away and forget about broadcast services, though, unless they get something they can't get anywhere else.  And the big combines don't show any sign of trying to deliver that for them.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms

   3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting.

Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

I think they are Mate-N-Lock ones.  Check Digi-Key.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.)
In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines,
please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

[My response, which follows, was deemed by one of the moderators to be

For a long time, I've been wondering what's in it for the public stations that run IBOC, or for NPR, for that matter. They don't promote their HD or HD2 channels, unlike their commercial cousins (as pathetic an effort as that has been, at least it was something.) Unless you already had an HD radio, you'd never know they were going through the effort.

Last week I had the great good fortune to be down in the West Palm Beach, Florida area (due to family issues). I'd been alerted that the local NPR affiliate, WXEL, had been sold and had new call letters, WPBI, and they had split their NPR news and talk programming off onto a second station, at 101.9. (The original signal, now all classical, remains at 90.7.)

When I started dialing around, that was indeed the case. But upon further investigation, it seems that 101.9 is nothing more than a translator, rebroadcasting the real NPR News programming, which now actually originates on the station's HD2. (Their TOH ID is "WPBI-HD2 West Palm Beach".) And the reception, as you'd expect from a translator, is nowhere close to the strength of the original signal. The locals were told the station was working on strengthening 101.9's signal "soon", though I wonder just how much strengthening they could get away with without adding more translators in other locations to fill in the holes.

How many public stations were sold on the idea that if they went HD, they'd be able to expand into a second signal in their market for cheap? Has this been the secret carrot that Ibiquity dangled at the end of the stick to get so many public broadcasters to jump on the bandwagon, despite all evidence that this was going to be a kludge of epic proportions?

...Neil

This is a major scam that was pushed through by iBiquity, who wants to sell its garbage at any cost to the industry. When push-back came from broadcasters who complained that no one was buying radios and that they were wasting their time with the HD-2 channels, this abomination came about. Broadcasters, for the price of IBOC gear and licensing fee get a free pass to soak up extra bandwidth on the FM band.

It does have a lot of broadcasters hopping mad.

It, however, does prove how ineffective IBOC really is.

Interesting article in the L.A. Times about KCSN, a small nonprofit station (the callsign stands for "Cal State Northridge," not "Crosby, Stills, and Nash" :-)) that is about to benefit from a concert by Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers and auction donations from U2, Bob Seger, Coldplay, Mick Jagger, etc.

http://www.latimes.com/entertainment/news/la-et-kcsn-20111013,0,561077.story

KCSN has a free-form format anchored by people who are passionate about different types of music. They're hoping to raise enough money to increase their signal strength and reach more of the L.A. area.

Actually they're not exactly free form.  They're what's termed in the trade "Triple-A," or "adult album alternative," a format that's been tried in various places on the commercial band without much success.  The program director, Sky Daniels, has extensive experience in commercial radio.

They used to have a student-staffed news department that won a lot of awards.  From time to time at industry events, I used to run into the professor in charge of it.  From the looks of the program schedule on their web site, they've gotten rid of that.  It seems like fewer and fewer college-owned stations have any kind of student involvement, although the one I advise is still student-managed.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files
   3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
- Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically.

However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Apparently there was just a conference of talkshow hosts held in Los Angeles. This article:

http://www.ocregister.com/articles/radio-323981-new-oct.html includes comments from Tom Leykis about the future of talk radio.

Here's an excerpt:

"I have learned that a radio is merely an appliance that most radio people are too in love with to divorce it from its content. Content transcends appliances."

He also talks about his plans to do a daily show as of next April; although he doesn't say exactly how it will be distributed, he says that "the appliance used to receive it will be one that everyone owns," so I'm guessing computer podcast. He almost says as much in the final quotation from him in the article.

Could be a telephone.  It'll give new life to the old phrase, "phoning it in".

I don't think as many people have smartphones as computers, but in any event, a smartphone is just a pocket-sized computer, so it's the same difference.

I have.  Contact Markertek Video Supply, they have a wide variety of different ones.

Multidyne and Voscon make the ones that I most often see, however in a pinch Hosa makes a cheap adaptor that takes TOSLINK in one end and has an ST connector on the other.  Connect two of these up with a couple miles of multimode fibre between them, put S-PDIF in one end and get S-PDIF out the other.  The Hosa is cheap and uses a wall wart so I would not trust it in an STL situation but I could see using it for an RPU arrangement from a concert hall on campus, etc.

Then there are multichannel systems out there like the Light Viper.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files
   3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

---------------------------------------------------------------

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Greetings All,

I am not a professional broadcaster in any way, shape or form, I'm just a plain old techie.  A couple of years ago I ran into a really neat podcast involving broadcast radio engineering. I have downloaded all the casts and really like to listen to them. If anyone is interested, please give the following site a check:

http://www.thisweekinradiotech.com/

Enjoy the casts.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files

   - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   - 4.1 Crossposting
   - 4.2 Valid "From" address
   - 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)

* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines,
please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines
and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Borgen, the Danish term for parliament, is a glossy political thriller in which the plot turns on the election of a fictional female prime minister. In the first episode the plot begins in London, but that was for the benefit of Danes rather than the potential export market. "It was to appeal to Danish viewers � we had no idea it was going to travel back to the UK later," said Hammerich.

Borgen is already showing signs of emulating the success of The Killing. An impressive 650,000 viewers tuned in for the opening episode, two weeks ago.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   - 1.1 Invitation to participate
   - 1.2 Charter
   - 1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   - 2.1 Newsgroup focus
   - 2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   - 2.4 Programming discussions
   - 2.5 Commercial postings
   - 2.6 Pirate radio
   - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   - 3.2 Civility
   - 3.3 Posting form
   - 3.4 Excessive quoting
   - 3.5 Pseudonyms
   - 3.6 Signature files
   - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   - 4.1 Crossposting

   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
- Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

The best AM receiver

Answering the question of "What's the best AM receiver/tuner I can get" is contingent on your definition as to what "best" means. If you want the best quality audio from local stations with a good antenna and ground, the old crystal radio is still the best.

For the uninitiated, a "crystal radio" has nothing to do with a crystal in the modern sense, the resonant piece of quartz used to define frequency in RF circuits including most every computer in existence. Crystal tuning for receivers and transmitters goes back to the twenties or thirties, but in this context we mean a crystal detector,i.e., a semiconductor diode, called a "crystal" because in the old days it consisted of a fine wire poked onto a chunk of lead pyrite or some other rock so that the wire or needle and rock formed a semiconducting PN junction. The actual tuning is done with LC circuits, traditionally made from a coil wound on a Quaker Oats container or similar. With a good antenna and ground, you could pick up enough RF so when the modulated signal was detected it would directly drive a pair of the old high impedance watchcase headphones. No battery was needed: it worked for free. All the energy used to drive the diaphragms of the headset came from the transmitter, tens, hundreds, perhaps under ideal conditions thousands of miles away.

A surprising amount of energy can be had this way. Within a few miles of a 50 kW daytimer or clear channel station, enough actual power can be developed-with the right RF and output matching- to light a flashlight bulb and certainly a LED. In fact, Klipsch used to have a demonstrator radio that would drive the midrange horn of a Klipschhorn or similar and provide a surprisingly loud signal in the room. At night one could listen to several stations in most cities almost as loudly as a nine-volt-powered transistor portable could play, and with better fidelity.

Of course, with enough power, an inadvertent crystal set can be accidentally assembled with humorous consequences-such as the elderly couple who complained that when Howard Stern was on the local station, sounds surprisingly resembling penis, vagina, and Baba Booey would emanate from the tub of their washing machine-or tragic ones such as the occasional premature dynamite explosion on a road project when some trucker with a 'foot warmer' keys his trusty CB rig.

A crystal radio, then is a passive, tuned-radio-frequency RF tuner. If the output were plugged into a good high impedance amplifier, the result is audio amplified as loud as we want it, just like any other line level audio source. In the beginning days of high fidelity, the RF coil houses like Miller introduced passive AM tuners that were nothing more than the old crystal radio. Because of the gain in a good preamp and power amplifier, you got good results in many cases with only a small antenna. Sensitivity and selectivity were not of the highest order, but with a good local station without much interference, the fidelity was superb. And, it still is. These passive AM tuners can still be found fairly cheaply or you can build one yourself, like generations of boys did in the past.

If on the other hand, you want broadcast band overall DX capability, you can either buy a serious communications receiver, or the next best thing-an old car AM radio converted to work at home. By the end of WWII, car radios were generally better radios than their domestic counterparts. They had to be, because of the environment they worked in. This was true until AM functionality came to be regarded as just a legacy as compared to FM performance around the early 1980s, at which time they cheapened the AM sections of the radios.

You want an AM only set for best Am performance. Either tube or solid state sets will work fine, but avoid like monkey plague the GM hybrid radios with 12 volt plate supply tubes and transistor output. Avoid Wonderbar or other auto tune radios: in fact a non-push-button set is best if you can find one made by Delco, Philco Ford or other Big 3 supplier. Avoid most aftermarket or foreign radios: the only ones any good are Blaupunkts or Beckers worth a lot to VW or Mercedes buffs. Overall, I think Delcos are the best. YMMV.

Needless to say, avoid ones with tape players, CB radios or the like. The cheapening started before digital came out, so avoid digital units entirely. You want either a 1947-1955 tube set or a 1964-1975 or so solid state one.

In the case of the solid state set you just need a 12.6 volt DC supply. These can be bought or built. It does not need to be regulated but it should be pretty quiet.

Tube sets can be run the same way, but it's inefficient. Instead, remove or disconnect the stock vibrator, power transformer and rectifier and provide a B+ supply with a conventional HV transformer, diodes and filter caps. You will also need a 6.3 or 12.6 volt heater supply of course. Generally, the limiting sonic factor is the stock output transformer, which you will want to replace with a larger and heavier one for a single ended amp using whatever tube is in there, usually a 6V6.

Most of the pure tube sets are for 6 volt supply, meaning they'll have 6 volt heater tubes, but some were 12 volt for the few cars and trucks that were 12 volt before the hybrid and full transistor sets came in. Usually those just have a different power transformer and use 12 versus 6 volt heater tubes. In some cases they seriesed the heaters on the small signal tubes and just used a 12V6, or used other odd arrangements. Almost always the filaments were run directly off the DC supply though.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting!  This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files
   3.7 Use of copyrighted material

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines,

please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines
and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

In last weeks Site of the Week installment, I talked about how often my travels take me through the Cleveland area, and how infrequently I manage to take some time to stop and sniff the RF, as it were. If Cleveland gets ignored too often by this column, then Toledo really gets the shaft. Just [...]

A friendly reminder: while it is acceptable under the posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting to use "munged" e-mail addresses as the originating address for your posts, please keep the following in mind:

1) Readers wishing to reply to you directly won't be able to do so without manually removing "SPAM" or whatever other word you've used in your address, and

2) If your post is rejected by the moderation team, you won't receive a rejection message. The software that we use assumes the e-mail address of the poster as the correct e-mail address.

Most posts are approved within a day. If your post hasn't appeared, and if you have not received a rejection message, please first consider whether you have used an incorrect, non-working e-mail address. Then please consider whether you wish to resubmit your post using an actual, working e-mail address. If that post is rejected, then we will be able to send a rejection message to you and then you will have an explanation of the issue or problem to which you may follow up as you would like.

Thank you,
the rec.radio.broadcasting moderation team

Quick  whats the only market in the country where one broadcaster programs all of the Big 4 TV networks? As far as I know, its Lima, Ohio, market #201, where all 39,350 TV homes receive their NBC, CBS, ABC and Fox from one building tucked into a residential neighborhood on the citys west side.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting!  This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   2.4 Programming discussions
   2.5 Commercial postings
   2.6 Pirate radio
   2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   3.2 Civility
   3.3 Posting form
   3.4 Excessive quoting
   3.5 Pseudonyms
   3.6 Signature files
   3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   4.1 Crossposting
   4.2 Valid "From" address
   4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Theres much more to Dayton, Ohio than just the annual Hamvention, which starts in just two weeks. This smallish city in southwest Ohio has lots of broadcast history, too  a history we began chronicling here in December 2010, when we presented a look at the now-former studios of Coxs WHIO radio and television. That [...]

Whats the oldest radio station in Dayton, Ohio? Thats easy: its the facility thats now WING (1410), the only Dayton station that survived the 1920s. WING claims a heritage that goes back to 1921, when Stanley M. Krohn began broadcasting, supposedly using the callsign WXOX. Official records dont show WXOX as a broadcast station; instead, [...]

The Fybush posts are wonderful.  Perhaps there are other national posts that can be generated.  Such as the NATIONAL FCC change feed. Perhaps an RSS of other radio/TV sites such as radio-info.com or monitoringtimes.com or popcomm.com or DCTV.com or perhaps a Google news feed of radio or shortwave or broadcasting. There are many radio aggregator sites that focus on broadcasting for a certain area.

There has to be a number of ways to generate posts to this group that would be truly informative content in addition to Fybush...which is good of course.

Thanks

Does John T mean 1994? Or was there an earlier end of the world?

Man, I wanted to hear that. I tuned in KEAR during the day, but all I heard was a health program followed by rather apocalyptic tunes.

As I've previously posted, my inner predictor swings wildly between total collapse and attempting business as usual. I'm going with the latter until I can't. I'm old enough that I really have no desire to be looking for a job that I'd be unlikely to find anyway, in the current economic climate.

John T worked there in 1994, I believe. I would expect a repeat of whatever happened then. As far as jobs, there is no shortage of Jesuscasters -- maybe JT could get picked up by K-Love, or Air One.

How many people work at FR? And about how many of those do you think do or don't expect to come back to work on Monday?

TV staff? FR has TV shows, too? I don't see any TV stations listed on their "Stations" page.

I think it's safe to say that the facilities will still be there. The question will be whether any of the leaders will want to show their faces again to keep their programming` on the air...

So who's feeding the network now? The same staff that's always on duty on weekends?

Thank you very much for the first-hand report, John.

Thank you so much for a compelling eye-witness account.  I hope that you don't lose your job over this.

While I think Family Radio's programming is quite bogus for the most part, I will say that they do try to do public affairs programming to relate to their audience -- and who does pubaffairs anymore?  I've heard them do programs on diabetes, heart disease, keeping families together -- all laudable things that hopefully help people.

I've never met Harold Camping, though in the past I knew a couple people who did radio production there. From what I remember them saying, I'd surmise that he'll just do business as usual and talk about a miscalculation or perhaps that God decided not to rush to judgment or something. There aren't many ways to save face on something like this, but most people have already dismissed him a a kook, so he doesn't have to appease them anyway.

FR owns some stations, including the now-low power version of KFTL (once on 64/Stockton).

Apparently they have some sort of cable TV operation, according to a news report I saw last night.

Well, leave it to ABC to get it wrong. They could have bothered asking any of us who were there during their interview session.

Currently we have four LPTVs (three of which are Class-A) and two translators in Northern California covering the SF Bay area from San Bruno Mtn., Chico & Sacramento from the Sutter Buttes, Chico & environs from Cohassett, Redding & region from South Fork and Red Bluff, etc. from the Tuscan Buttes. Oh, and our remaining analog translator covering the valley north of Stockton to Fresno and from Mt. Bullion.

We also have a full power non-com that serves northern NJ/NYC, and has cable/satellite carriage in NYC and the region.

Then there are the Boise and Twin Falls LPTVs that may or may not be on the air ATM. (Winter construction delays, y'know?)

As Mike Ward pointed out, we used to own ch. 64, Stockton, which was sold to Univision/Telefutura in 2003 at which time we bought ch. 28 in SF and moved the KFTL callsign. Being a Class-A LPTV doesn't get us cable/satellite carriage, so only those with antennas can receive us.

There's probably a hundred or so in Oakland, and maybe another hundred or so nationwide. I'm sure some will hide out for a while until they realize they're not getting paid for time off.

A few will arrive with stunned looks on their faces Monday morning-whispering their speculative disappointment in the corners, looking furtively around, wondering how this could have happened.

Many of us will simply arrive to work as usual and hope that we can survive with an intact paycheck.

Heh. We've always been the odd-man-out/black sheep of Family Stations. KFTL-CD, Channel 28, San Francisco from San Bruno Mountain. Studios in Oakland next to Family Radio headquarters.

Any video of Family Bible Study and Open Forum that have been on the FR web site originated in our studio. Open Forum has originated from the TV studio since 1988.

One of the board members has been hiding in Ohio this week, another hasn't been seen at Family Radio for several weeks and the third is Harold's daughter who doesn't appear to have a mind of her own. (But that could be said of the other board members too. How does one get to be as old as they are with neither testicles nor spine?)

I don't know what our Network Control manager told his staff- and I'm pretty sure radio programming will be something of a mess for a while.
Our programming people had their creativity amputated and cauterized long ago.

I look after my own spheres of influence. I am operations manager of KFTL-CD (Meaning that some days I manage to operate!). I am also the default external Internet connectivity guy for FRHQ and look after the mp3 stream encoders that function as STLs for direct-to-home satellite uplinking in the U.K. There's a few other hats I wear from time to time. It all sounds much more important that it really is.

I'm surprised FR hasn't been able to negotiate something with Kabletown ... er, I mean Comcast.

I guess we should check tomorrow to see if the HSN feed on 28.2 has been turned off, as it normally is on Sundays on the station.

In any event, KFTL comes in at my house better than KNTV does (both sited at Mt. San Bruno).

No change there yet. In the absence of direction we'll maintain that pattern. No need to go out of our way to offend the powers that remain (if they return).

Programming on 28.1 will not include any Harold or his people, mainly due to the fact that everything has been about Judgment Day for a couple of years. If you have ever been a fan of the old _This Is The Life_ dramas, we'll be airing a lot of that along with _The Joy of Music_ and Bible reading starting today, as a matter of fact.

We may air some of our public domain shows and movies after Sunday, but I don't think anything is set yet.

We're on the same tower as KKPX (ch. 65) and the last remaining analog station in SF, MTV Tr3s, ch. 40. KNTV is on the southern-most tower where KCSM's analog used to be.

I've been listening off and on throughout the day and it's been largely music with some Bible reading here and there.  Either I'm interpreting something that isn't there or a couple of the guys who are doing the readings are picking out passages that dig at Hal.  One read something about false prophets.  Another guy later said something about not knowing what is in God's mind, etc.  Could be pretaped coincidences or who knows...

"This Is The Life" is actually very well done.  I haven't seen it in years.
I remember occasionallly seeing it on various stations back in the day when stations ran pubaffairs and inspirational stuff on Sundays.

This must be very hard for you folks to figure out what to do at this juncture.  Good luck.

Back around 1980 or so, WYFR broadcasts in the 40M combined ham/shortwave broadcast band had a substantial second harmonic that was falling into the 20M ham band.  I wrote the station engineer a nice letter describing what was happening, and I received back a QSL card and a letter asking for money.

Over the course of the next decade or so, I continued receiving begging letters from Family radio on and off, and as the decade went on, the quality of the letters improved from something printed on a misaligned chain printer on newsprint, on up to personalized letters printed with a nice daisywheel printer on good paper, on up to letters laser printed (and this was the age before laser printers became quite so cheap) on linen rag.

So all I can think is that SOMEONE must have been sending them money.  But it wasn't me.  And the second harmonic interference continued for some time, though not anywhere near as long as the letters.

The Jehovah's Witnesses predicted the apocalypse in 1928, and when it did not happen, they revised it to some time in the 40s.  It didn't happen then either.  After the second false alarm, they adopted the (reasonable) doctrine that nobody could know when it was going to happen.  They are still around today, which is a sign that bad predictions like this won't completely kill your credibility among deluded followers.

Ah, okay. Guess I don't get it. I just looked at my OTA list and that one isn't on it. I just rescanned a few weeks ago, so my list is up to date.

I didn't notice any video links on the FR website, but maybe I missed them. I'm still waiting for the May 19th Open Forum MP3 to be uploaded.

Yes, one of the newspaper articles mentioned that they'd been told not to produce any new shows for after May 20th.

Family Radio has an uplink facility in the UK? What do they originate

Here's a follow-up article in the L.A. Times that mentions the radio stations and FR personnel in a couple of places, including news that FR's station in Sacramento was vandalized:

http://www.latimes.com/news/local/la-me-rapture-20110522,0,5118540.story

I checked the SacBee's website, but they had no further information; just the same one-liner in the story they'd picked up from the Times. Hopefully the vandalism was only graffiti or something like that that didn't damage the broadcasting equipment.

Not exactly. The problem was that no one said what to produce. And it didn't matter to Camping and Co., since it was just "busy work" anyway.

We have had three full-time audio channels on direct-to-home satellite for over ten years. One is our domestic stereo feed time-shifted for Central European Time. The other two are multi-lingual mono streams on the same satellites. These are currently uplinked for us by World Radio Network (WRN), and we appear in the BSkyB EPG.

One of the multi-lingual streams is also directed to another uplink site for specific program distribution to transmitters in various places such as South Africa, India, Dubai, Wooferton, etc. If you go to www.short-wave.info and select Family Radio from the drop-down list, it will show you all of the shortwave transmitters we've been on. Most of our shortwave programs are delivered to the uplink service by ftp, however.

How much of this will continue, or for how long, I have no idea.

I hadn't heard that. I'm sure I'll get a thorough update tomorrow. A lot of the "sheep without a shepherd" will be turning to my immediate boss for guidance and feeding us news.

I'll update here as I can, when I know anything of a publicly appropriate nature.

Please do let us know what you find out about the Sacto facility.
And anything else you can reveal about what happens at the HQ tomorrow would also be very interesting. This is a unique and bizarre situation for a radio network, so I really appreciate that you've been sharing what you can with BABM/RRB readers.

We've actually got to hand it to Harold Camping. He could have chosen an "exit strategy" in order to save face. He could have just left the area. He could have used excuses about his calculations, but he actually has admitted that he's bewildered and that he just doesn't understand what went wrong.

�Give me a day, no interviews at all today. Sorry. You know this is a big deal, big deal, and I've got to live with it and I've got to think it out. So no interview,�

It was very much business-as-usual until around 5:00 p.m. when the press (invited) began to show up. Once again, visitors other than media were banned from the building, but members of the press more than made up for their absence. There were more reporters and cameras than I have ever seen in one place before. All the stations were there, including, I think, one of the Chinese newscasts.

Of course, as David Kaye mentioned in another thread, there remains October 21st, so Camping seems to think that he can just pick up the rhythm and march to it at least until then. We'll see.

Naturally, Camping blamed God for the failure, saying that Christ had actually returned, but spiritually instead of physically. That sounds quite familiar if you've ever studied the history of doomsday cults and their failed predictions. In the face of contradicting reality, they just say that it's spiritual, and you wouldn't understand unless you take up their view of life and eternity. Done.

One thing the press has gotten consistently wrong is the amount of donations. The $100+ million figure they throw around is money derived primarily from the sales of Channel 64 and the cash-plus trade of 106.9 FM for 610 AM. Whereas donation income has remained relatively steady, what has been different recently is that the flow of many small donations was replaced by a trickle of fewer and bigger donations.

For the moment jobs seem to be relatively safe, but that could change depending on whether income continues or not. There are some stations that could be sold for a better-than-tidy sum and could fund operations for several years. Most likely that will happen, but that doesn't mean there won't be a housecleaning as we experienced after September 1994. Some of the "ghosts" (people who don't really have productive jobs) could be forced to go haunt someplace else.

He seemed to be blaming himself for his inability to interpret the Bible. What I've never understood is why God has to be so mysterious. My kind of God would just lay it out plain and simple like.

Yeah, that was a stretch.

I was actually surprised that he actually mentioned this on the program. He seemed to me, anyhow, to be remarkably candid in all this.

So, if he doesn't collect a salary from Family Radio, as evidenced by his non-profit filing for 2009, where does he get his personal income, from his retirement as a civil engineer for the city of Oakland?

Back when I knew a production guy over there he asked me if I might want to apply for a job. This was when Family was about half the size it is today. I said no because I wasn't a believer. The guy (I forget his name now) told me that I didn't have to be a believer, just be able to do a good job.

I should think there are enough commercially viable stations that they could actually set up an endowment for the whole operation.

Yes, I was thinking when I heard that today that at least you have a job for the next five months! And that will give you some time to look for something else--if you don't win the lottery in the interim. :-)

Hey, this has been more fun than the usual discussions of license transfers and misleading commercials. :-)

What struck me from the news coverage was Camping's shrugging off any responsibility for people who changed their economic position in reliance on his prediction. "That's between them and God," he said.

I remember reading a notable goalpost shift in a Martin Gardner book. Here's the story from the Ontario (CA) Consultants on Religious Tolerance:

"1914 was one of the more important estimates of the start of the war of Armageddon by the Jehovah's Witnesses (Watchtower Bible and Tract Society). They based their prophecy of 1914 from prophecy in the book of Daniel, Chapter 4. The writings referred to "seven times". The WTS interpreted each "time" as equal to 360 days, giving a total of 2520 days. This was further interpreted as representing 2520 years, measured from the starting date of 607 BCE. This gave 1914 as the target date. When 1914 passed, they changed their prediction; 1914 became the year that Jesus invisibly began his rule. "

Like Camping, the JW's were not deterred by their first failed prediction: "1914, 1915, 1918, 1920, 1925, 1941, 1975 and 1994, etc. were other dates that the Watchtower Society (WTS) or its members predicted. "

A list of these and other failed EotW predictions is available here:

I have no problem with that.  KGO runs an ad for back yard paving stones and urges "the next 10 callers" to buy them.  Nobody here would chastise KGO or its advertiser for telling people to go out and buy the paving stones.

So, why should people get their undies in a knot when Harold Camping DOES NOT tell people to drain their bank accounts?  I don't know how many of you have listened to Harold Camping over the years, but I have, not much but just once in awhile to keep in touch with that he's doing.  I have never ever heard him tell people to drain their bank accounts, to go on lavish vacations, to run up credit card debt, or for that matter even to give to Family Radio.  Now, what they do in direct mail may be something different, but on the air the most they've done is offer free pamphlets and Bible tracts.

If the 1994 pattern holds, this will last a week or so. By then he will have fully developed a convoluted zig-zag around various Bible verses that (according to him) prove him conclusively right. Remember, to Harold Camping, interpreting the Bible is not understanding what is in the text itself, it is digging out by our own hard work what God has hidden from us. That's why many of his teachings, especially in the last year or so, are directly contradictory to the written text. His biblical spelunking has left him blind to the obvious.

I don't recall that he worked for the city. He owned a construction company, and he owns property all over the Bay Area. He built a fair number of shopping centers around such as Town & Country Village (Sunnyvale), Pelton Center in San Leandro, South Shore in Alameda, and he still owns the land beneath the Alameda post office. (All of these last I heard- things might have changed). In decades past he bankrolled Family Radio through some financial crises. Harold Camping, even now, cannot be accused of financial greed for its own sake.

Harold Camping is, in many ways, very easy to work for. Do your job, don't undermine him, don't contradict him in public. You can screw up mightily and he will let it go if you simply own up to your errors. There are several levels on which he is a very likable old man, and there is a great deal of flexibility in our employment. I have been places and done things that never would have happened in the real world. I've been on full salary throughout cancer treatments and multiple surgeries during the last two years. Name another business where that would be true. (Of course, another business might have had real health insurance. That's a sore spot!)

Unfortunately, he and his board either don't understand commercial operation and what it could (have) do(ne), or there has been a rejection of the notion altogether. When we owned channel 64 it could have been a cash cow for the organization, but Jesus was coming in 1994 and there wasn't time to do business as business. And then he was offered money for the station that would finance the present campaign. As it was, we were never more than a "break even" operation.

In the end no commercial operation can be had because everything done throughout the organization is not just for Harold Camping, but it is about Harold Camping. We couldn't broker religious time on 610 because there would be other voices, and, to borrow from Higlander, "There can be only one." Likewise, a secular format would be a complete waste of precious time to disseminate Harold's voice.

Do you see why things are the way they are?

In 1994 the aftermath was definitely different than yesterday. Then, people slunk (is that a word?) around for weeks. They were totally deflated. This time . . . many arrived, thumbs hooked in suspenders, smug and arrogant as ever. They had already apparently heard that the goal was moved back to October.

My philosophy as I've expressed here from time to time: You cannot argue someone out of a position using logic if they did not use logic to get themselves into it.

Dang it!  Those are some of my favorite places as shopping centers go.  I had no idea about this side of him.

It's a bane, but it's a boon, too.  As I've said before, though I abhor most of his teachings, Family Radio is really the only religious broadcaster I can think of that doesn't feel slimy.

I'd agree, with the exception that Billy Graham's operation also seemed very sincere and honest.  I have always been impressed with how Hour of Decision was done.

I worked briefly for an AM play-for-pay operation in the eighties and got to know some folks at other similar independents.  To call some of those folks "slimy" is a great understatement.  But, people are just this way. You throw the moneylenders out of the temple, in a couple thousand years they're just going to be back again...

Third-hand rumor I heard was AC compressors and tubing were taken and some of the ground radials.

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   - 1.1 Invitation to participate
   - 1.2 Charter
   - 1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   - 2.1 Newsgroup focus
   - 2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   - 2.4 Programming discussions
   - 2.5 Commercial postings
   - 2.6 Pirate radio
   - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   - 3.2 Civility
   - 3.3 Posting form
   - 3.4 Excessive quoting
   - 3.5 Pseudonyms
   - 3.6 Signature files
   - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   - 4.1 Crossposting
   - 4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

--------------------------------------------------------------

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

--------------------------------------------------------------

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
- Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically.

However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

When land in Chattanooga is worth more than ad receipts, you know that AM radio is in trouble.  Frankly, I'm surprised that more Bay Area AMs haven't been turned into real estate developments.  To date I know of only one.

There are very few (if any) operating AM sites in the Bay Area that are capable of being turned into housing developments.

They are all in either hard-core industrial areas, next to rendering plants, on the bay (and in the bay), on toxic sites, or even on land used by studios for multiple stations. The only site I can think of that might be suitable for residential conversion might by the King Road 1170 site, which is a horse pasture in the midst of cheesy apartments.

"The one" you mention was right square in the middle of some rapidly expanding housing. It is now a mix of multi-family housing, light industrial, retail, and even San Jose's main post office. In any event, I can't think of a single site in the Bay Area that is comparable in terms of development potential.

I don't think AM radio is in trouble, but I think a lot of AM radio stations are in big, big trouble.  There are a lot of stations that are mortgaged to the hilt, and there are also a lot of owners who are totally delusional about the value of their property.  They are convinced that the station license is worth a huge amount of money, which it no longer is.

The license is not worth money... the listener base is worth money, but only if the listener base actually exists.

We have some AM stations around here that do very well, including an AM daytimer run by the former mayor which is probably the most popular station in the city.  We also have a lot of them that are basically on the air playing garbage off the satellite with minimal advertising and minimal listeners while the owners wait for a miracle to happen.

Actually, a DUH came to mind, given that I once worked there. 1480 was located across from the Concord Pavilion. When the lease expired the 5 towers were immediately taken down, the buildings demolished, and it seemed like it was turned into houses in less than a year.

Address would be the intersection of Myrtle and Holly in Concord. Looks like it was converted into about 8 properties.

Explain 1550 then, John. The "new" KFRC towers are adjacent to 101, in the shadow of the Oracle Campus, right near where Belmont, Redwood Shores and San Mateo all meet. That seems like it would be some prime real estate. Hell a big Mercedes dealershipship built their showroom right next to that parcel.

Given that land's value and the pitiful ratings that 1550 gets with the True Oldies Channel and the occasional overflow sports game, I have to suspect that station would be worth more to CBS as real estate than as a going concern.

Having done work at that site, I can tell you that it frequently floods, it smells, and it is noisy as hell. That property would need a heluva lot of love before you built anything there that might attract people.

That may be, but in my experience CBS only sells off properties that have nice bottom lines (e.g. KBAY/KEZR). It has a "San Francisco" city of license; how could they possibly let it go?

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting!  This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter

   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   - 2.1 Newsgroup focus
   - 2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
   - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
   - 2.4 Programming discussions
   - 2.5 Commercial postings
   - 2.6 Pirate radio
   - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
   - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
   - 3.2 Civility
   - 3.3 Posting form
   - 3.4 Excessive quoting
   - 3.5 Pseudonyms
   - 3.6 Signature files
   - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
   - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
   - 4.1 Crossposting
   - 4.2 Valid "From" address
   - 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends

- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

- Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
- Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
- Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)

C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

--------------------------------------------------------------

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

I've acquired the Drake/Chenault "History of Rock and Roll", the original version from an estate sale.  It's on a crateful of LPs (ETs actually).  The records were acquired by the family of a production guy who worked on the series.  The ETs look to be in good condition, probably only played once or twice.

These are only the records, of course.  They do not come with any broadcast rights.

Please email me to make an offer.  Remove the "2" from my address to contact me immediately.

You'll be totally blown away by this week's "Snap Judgment", produced in Oakland and distributed via NPR.

The great grandson of Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard talks about the family curse; a black guy talks about his white grandmother and his deep and then bumpy relationship with her.  A straight guy from a liberal Jewish family talks about coming out straight.

Here's the video of the program:
http://www.snapjudgment.org/snap-live-drama-momma-tv

"Snap Judgment" airs locally at 1:00am (why???) Sunday morning on KQED Radio 88.5 and at a more reasonable hour, Wednesdays at 1:00pm on KALW 91.7.

You've GOT to hear this program; it's one of their very best.

Indeed so. That's exactly what I use my cell phone for: paging. Now, the phone itself is actually excellent. Sometimes, I use my VoIP client app (Groundwire) to register with my own server and actually make phone calls. But that only works if I have WiFi available (for instance at one of my stations) or I'm in an area with exceptionally good 3G coverage.

Also, there are apps that allow G.722 on VoIP, allowing the phone to be used as a device to provide broadcast quality audio for a live remote or recorded actuality transfer. This should be the answer to radio stations' prayers in providing very listenable quality.

But the stock cell telephone service is garbage through and through. The providers have crammed so many channels into such little bandwidth that it is amazing that it works at all. So...it is, as you put it, pretty much reduced to paging.

Many stations never had mic flags.  And those that did often used them only for remotes, not in-studio.  I can think of a number of stations I worked for that never had mic flags at all.

As late as 1965 there were stations that still used open reel tapes for spots. I can remember visiting KDAC in Fort Bragg California.  Their spots were live or on 3 or 5-inch reels.  In those days the Fidelipac system was still under patent, and thus was expensive to buy.  So, lots of smaller stations just made do without until they couldn't hold out any longer.

Not necessarily, either.  Radio stations were known for having few perqs, but one perq nearly every station had where I ever worked was the coffee pot.

While you're attempting good detective work, none of the things you mention point to a fraudulent photo.  Now, I haven't seen the photo and I know nothing about WHLO, but I'm just basing this on my experience.

You missed the point of my post entirely.

I pledged during a fund drive at a specific premium level and the station didn't come thru with the goods.  If you are a station offering premiums at various levels of donations(a baseball cap at $25, a famous book at $75, or DVDs at $100) you have to stand by those premiums!
I'm all about helping out the station, and financially is the easiest way - as it is for many people.  Unfortunately I'm married and work full time - IOW I have a life - not that you don't, I'm just saying.
It's an hour's worth of trains between Stamford and the City(metro north - subway transfer to lower manhattan), so the amount of actual station time I could provide would be puny compared to those with PT jobs or are retired or financially solvent and don't need to work.

They don't.  Most of those myriad positions are operated by volunteers.  The people answering the phones are entirely volunteers.

Pacifica affiliates have no money.  Zero money.  As in, can't always pay the power bill money.  As in, broadcast engineers from competing radio stations volunteer time to fix things when they break.

I don't know how bad the WBAI facilities are like, but if you go to the WPFW facilities you will see office furniture from the fifties, ceiling tiles falling down, and broken windows covered with cardboard.  These are not highly funded operations.

That's because they don't have money to hire a receptionist.  You have some time, go over and offer to answer the phones for them.  Also, donations of office furniture are usually very welcome.

>On the other hand, when it is fundraising month, BOY ohh BOY is it

That's because everybody is willing to volunteer for the beg-a-thon, but getting volunteers day-in and day-out is far more difficult.  Only you can solve this problem.  Go over and volunteer.

Pacifica does not have a financial condition.  You have to have actual finances in order to have a condition.  Pacifica does not operate with a huge endowment or large government subsidies, they operate with whatever people have given them recently and with whatever people have shown up to volunteer that day.

The Haitian bootleggers in Brooklyn are better-financed than Pacifica.

Chris, I know that Scott's comment seems strong, but he's got a long history in this business, so it may not be much of an exaggeration!

I sympathize with you. :-) We had a similar discussion on a local broadcast newsgroup not long ago. Most listener-supported stations have disclaimers on their websites that premiums will take 6-8 weeks to arrive. I think you're on the outside end of that time period with WBAI now, so I understand your frustration--especially with not even being able to reach someone for an explanation of the delay and when you might expect to get the item. Other than occasionally trying to contact them, you probably can't do much more than wait. :-( If it's any consolation, I requested a license-plate frame from a local public TV station last fall and it just arrived a couple of weeks ago...

Patty

Look at it this way:  if you get the premium the amount that you contributed is not tax deductible up to the value of the premium - it is considered as a purchase.  If you don't get the premium, you can claim it as a pure contribution, and your reward will be from the IRS rather than "in heaven".

We all learn the hard way:  if you really want something, buy it at retail.

Because why?  Because they hate you?  Or because they are disorganized?  If they're disorganized, why?  Because they don't have someone making sure that orders are fulfilled?

You and your spouse could volunteer TOGETHER!  When couples do things together it enriches their experience as a couple.

If you believe in Pacifica's mission then you'd spend that time once in awhile to help out.  Gosh, think of taking a Saturday, let's say, and spending 5 hours going through their pledge records and seeing if orders have been fulfilled.  You'd get a LOT done in that time and you'd make a lot of other people happier, too.

Or you could sit and grouse about how ungrateful Pacifica is.

It's your choice.

Thx for the explanation.  Unfortunately the IRS won't even consider tax deductible donations until they total at least $10,000.  That's a LOT of DVDs!  LOL.  Kars For Kids is something that will definitely warrant a deduction.

--------------------------

I think they appreciate every penny they get in.  And premiums are a natural enticement to keep donations coming in.  Again David, I'm a PRINCIPLED person, and if a broadcast outlet offers something at low/no cost to them if you donate at a certain level, they should honor that within a reasonable amount of time.  I'm not saying I want them in my mailbox within 3 days of my pledge - I just want to know that the item/s are on the way.  And being able to hear that when I call on the phone is encouraging.

I know it's cliched, but, "it's the principle of the matter".

I just think that jokes about Haitians are not where we need to go - considering what happened in Haiti not much more than a year ago.  I hope we don't start hearing stuff like this about Japan in a year or so.

Consider the topic dropped.

I'm not joking.  Turn your FM dial all the way to the left.  There are a couple different Haitian organizations that run the things in Brooklyn.
They normally run a couple hundred watts forward into small antennas with a little horizontal gain in the direction of Manhattan.  Reception varies from clear to spotty in most of the city.  They have call-in shows and sell advertising, just like real licensed stations.  Occasionally they get busted but the FCC is too busy worrying about breasts on TV to enforce licensing violations.  I kind of like listening to the zouk music actually.

That looks like air vents to a reel to reel unit, and the thing that looks like a cart looks too long to be one.  Still, it could be.  The units I remember at WHLO (newer studios in Fairlawn) were to the left of the console and were a stack of 4 I think.  Of course, that was a quick glance from the late 60's, so I could be wrong.

Oh, and thanks for the analysis David Kaye.

Chris, I think you need a new tax preparer! I assure you that any donations to qualifying 501(c)(3) organizations, no matter how small, are deductible on your federal tax returns. (As long as you are someone who itemizes their deductions on Schedule A.)

Here's more info:

http://www.irs.gov/newsroom/article/0,,id=106990,00.html

Whenever I get a premium from a public TV or radio station (or any other nonprofit organization), I always make sure that I have a statement from them of the item's fair market value so that I can prove how much of my contribution was an actual donation. As Phil pointed out, if you don't get a premium, your entire donation is deductible.

Sorry for the topic drift, but I wanted to make sure that everyone knew that their contributions to public broadcasting entities are (so long as those entities are duly certified by the IRS) definitely deductible on federal tax returns.

Patty

I'm looking at a blowup of the photo now. Those are definitely carts with white labels on them, with some kind of writing on them. At the left on the label is a red splotch that looks like a logo or maybe a number. To the left of the label is a patch of blue. In those days Fidelipac carts came in blue.

Also, to the left of the left turntable is clearly a cart with the tape side turned toward the viewer. Fidelipacs had 3 holes, one for the capstan, one for the record head, and one for the playback head.

The brushed aluminum chairs definitely look of the era.

The label on the record the DJ is cuing up is Laurie Records of NYC, which was very big in the late 50s/early 60s, but changed their label by the mid-60s.

David,

Thanks for the second look. My guess is that you really know your way around a radio studio! I've enjoyed your insight.

Moving forward a few decades, the radio studio of today is sooo different. No turntables or cart machines or even notes above the control board -- just a computer screen. Of course, the other thing that is (usually) gone is the DJ. Replaced by voice tracking. Isn't progress wonderful?

Thanks again.

One could say that Bill Drake killed off DJ-radio by emphasizing the "more music" idea. While his stations definitely had some top-notch DJs, the magic of his format was that whether the DJ had any talent or not, they could still do a good sounding program just by following his format. If they had the talent they could do a bit. If they didn't, they could just stick with the liners.

Drake himself demonstrated that listeners would tolerate, maybe even embrace, automation when he did his "Hit Parade" and "Solid Gold" automation for FM stations. While not ratings burners, they still brought in enough revenue versus the cost that the stations could actually make money.

Ah, McRadio.  That is why I have a mp3 player -- can't stand radio today.  Thanks to the programmers and Clear Channel.  Oh well.

CC just plays what the people want.  For many years they operated a website called the Format Lab, which had a bunch of test formats.  Judging by the length of time a user listened, where they were located, and any other demographic info they could get, they took listenership into consideration when deploying new formats on their stations.

Contrary to popular belief, you can't just do a seat of your pants format. First, too much money is involved; second, it's too easy to alienate an audience by playing the wrong thing.  Thus, the stations that actually have ratings to all they can to test songs and DJs before putting them into their programming mix.

Actually, the tools today are better than they have ever been. What used to be a mountain of effort to produce has become unbelievably easy and fast to do. If I do say so myself, one of my stations has probably one of the most beautiful control rooms in the industry. Indeed, there are no mountains of cart machines, no turntables taking up countertop space, and of course no tape recording equipment of any kind. The sight lines are clean, and the sweeping view of Mt. Diablo from the building's top floor is breath-taking. It certainly is not the quintessential radio facility as pictured by an old-timer (such as myself) in radio.

But for all of its traditional-trapping shortcomings, the talent can simultaneously do production and do a live radio show. It isn't the voice tracking that is evil (virtually all stations have it, even those that are "live"); it is simply a tool to increase productivity.

What you are bemoaning should not be the advancements in technology, but the decline in creativity and the advancement of laziness. I wonder if part of the charm of "the old days" was the fact that doing anything was a monumental chore. Now that we can do all of that and more in a walk, no one much cares about doing it at all.

I was musing just today about how easy (and cheap) it is now to do a full remote broadcast from anywhere in the world, and yet no one seems to be interested in remotes anymore. [irony on] Too much work, I guess! [irony off]

I know of one who does a request show from his home studio via voice-tracking.  The station's request line is forwarded to his house, he takes and records the calls, cuts and edits the voice tracks, and sends them via high-speed internet to the station's automation system, which he also can control remotely, and changes the playlist and inserts the tracks as needed.  The calls and requests are delayed by mere minutes.

In my little part-time-just-for-fun gig, which is always "live," I will sometimes use voice-tracking to do a complicated bit in a break. That way there's no danger of "blowing it" live. If I screw up, I just re-do it. I usually don't work more than about ten minutes ahead. I can also give myself a lunch break mid-shift, by recording a few tracks.

Today's computerized automation systems not only increase productivity, they can be used (in the right hands) to increase creativity.

Excellent points.  Speaking of remotes, most stations use a cell phone.
It is difficult for me to watch a radio personality wait for the program cue ("...and now, live and remote..."), then they talk into a cell phone until the automation takes back control. Contrast that to the 60's when the radio station had a dedicated broadcast line, a Sparta board, and a live board operator at the station. Yes, it is easier this way, but TV diners are easier than a good meal too.

By the way, WHLO was one of the kings of remotes. They did a lot of them in the 60's. Car dealers, restaurants, furniture stores, exhibitions, amusement park, department stores, etc.

One other point that I'm hearing a lot -- there is no money in radio unless one is in a major market. Thus, creative people go elsewhere, and the remote is as cheap as possible. Elaborate jingles -- gone. News coverage 24/365 -- gone. Good radio personality 24 hrs. -- gone.

Thank goodness for the mp3 player. It is as good as radio is today.

More than 30 years ago a popular DJ at KNEW did a remote from somewhere, I forget. I think it was Hillsdale Mall. Anyhow, his setup was (1) mic, (2) headphones, (3) mixer, (4) button. Wasn't much to look at.

Today I doubt that many advertisers would pay to have remotes, and likely because with so much stereo and studio equipment in people's homes, there is no magic in showing off a radio remote. My new housemate has a bigger mixing board with more channels and more effects than any commercial broadcast console in existence.

Now, as to the the location advantage, that only really works for interviews, and few stations but talk stations do interviews much. It'd be good if KGO got out. Some years back I tried to get KALW interested in siting their studio in a storefront in a rent/promo exchange. I had a potential landlord lined up but the KALW people were already destined to locate at the Burton high school instead.

That actually wasn't what I was talking about. I was referring to remotes with full-fidelity stereo links to the studio, with full broadcast setups from the remote site. KKIQ periodically does the whole morning show from Tommy T's in Pleasanton. The setup is scalable to do that show from anywhere in the world.

Now, instead of ordering broadcast circuits from the east coast or Europe, or even ISND lines, it can be done over the Internet for zero-cost per minute.

KKIQ used to do several "real" remotes a week. That's been cut considerably, even though today's technology provides quality unattainable in past years.

Yes, that is how the creative-less conglomerates excuse themselves for only being able to sustain stations in the top ten (maybe top twenty) markets. I'm at the NAB for the primary purpose to deal with a shopping list of major equipment for the small stations I work for. They're doing just fine, thank you very much.

> Thank goodness for the mp3 player.  It is as good as radio is today.

I have to agree with you. But please remember where the blame lies. We have financiers, investment brokers, MBAs of every description, self-proclaimed programming consultants, and private equity companies controlling the major so-called broadcasting companies these days...not broadcasters.

Gosh, this beats Wolfman Jack's days when you didn't hear your request to the next night at the very same time...

You bring up a fascinating point: Will radio stations become the server farms of broadcasting? On the weekends, it's not unusual for KGO's "live 'n' local" talkshows to come from a station with empty studios.

I remember one day when KGO aired Leo Laporte from 11 to 1, Bob Brinker from 1 to 4, Len Tillem from 4 to 7, Karel from 7 to 10, Bill Wattenburg from 10 to 1, and Christine Craft from 1 to 5am -- none in the KGO studios.

This is nothing new. For years, Sunday has been the day when engineers could get into the studios to work on them. Indeed, back they only had one studio, Sunday was a lifesaver. Having two studios has taken the heat off considerably.

At least KGO works on their equipment.  I find it hard to fathom that KNBR, former NBC West Coast flagship, has audio so bad you have to turn up the volume to understand what they're saying.  Sounds like their high end rolls off at 1khz.

With all due respect, that is very easy to say for someone who has not spent decades walking the walk. Today, there is increasingly more daytime administration required and it is very difficult to put in a full-day's work and then stay up all night. I've reached a point that I cannot do that anymore, and I have so advised my charges that if I have to work overnight, they will not see me in the studio during the day for two or three days thereafter.

The pay does not support martyrdom.

KGO takes its audio very seriously. Unfortunately, there are stations that don't. Some stations don't even know they sound bad, so it is unknown whether they would fix the problems or not if they were aware of them.

(1) The equipment is too dependable these days to require all that much work. You have engineers today who service 3 to 5 or more stations whereas there used to be one engineer per station, who maybe moonlighted at a non-comm.

(2) Stations used to care about making a good presentation, so they wouldn't allow the station to go off the air between 6am and midnight. Now, they don't really care, as long as they can get their spotbreaks in when they come back on.

UPDATE:

Today, April 15th, I talked to the person in charge of premiums/fundraising!!  She asked me for my particulars(name, address,etc), and discovered that my DVDs were shipped out on February 26th, two days before I pledged!  What?

That's right, someone made an entry error.  She flagged it and said give it one more week.  If my DVDs don't arrive by next Weds or Thursday she said to call her back at her direct line.

There is hope, after all.

I still think you need to volunteer at WBAI, since obviously you are interested in keeping them on the air.  As I said, you can do a lot with 5 hours on a Saturday, and goodness knows they can use the help, like any other Pacifica station.

I don't agree about volunteering. I tried this many years ago. The station was not a Pacifica - but these "public radio" stations are all cut from the same cloth. They are run by extreme left-wing elitists and you have to be a part of their clique. Thank goodness for the internet where anyone can run their own "radio station", so what do you need "public" radio/cable access t.v. for? On a higher level, these state "public radio" networks are even worse - there's nothing "public" about them. The "public" can volunteer - yeah, only to answer phones during Pledge Week. These are "non profit" operations that pay out good sized salaries and they are run like a commercial venture, only they have the benefit of getting all kinds of outside funding and they don't have to pay taxes. Then you have Minnesota Public Radio and some others that are also operators of for-profit enterprises which fuel the non-profit side and keep the CEO's in the chips. I think the original complaint here about simply answering their phones is quite valid. If they are too lazy, incompetent, or short staffed to even do that . . . well, you know the rest

There is NOTHING wrong with elitism.  Now, think about it.  Don't YOU want to be part of a special club?  Don't you get the chills when someone gives you a free ticket to a show or someone gets you a special discount on tires or something, or lets you into a special place others aren't supposed to go?

Of COURSE you want to be elite.  You want to think of yourself as extra special.  You want to be in that club that few others can get into.  It's the American way, and all that.

Now there's a difference between a liberal education and being a liberal. HOWEVER, the two do go hand in hand because when you're exposed to more education you can't help but become more liberal.

This is why seacoast towns and college towns are usually more liberal than inland towns and places without colleges.  People get exposed to people from other lands.  They're exposed to other ideas.  They tend to grow and become more accepting of the idea that there are other ways of living, and that these other way can sometimes be better than we we're already doing.

As to the programming on non-comm stations, once you get into the station and get accepted by its staff you can help fashion the station into what you want to hear.

And the result can be quite conservative, too.  This is why some non-comm radio stations specialize in things like classical music, or 1930s Tin Pan Alley music, etc.  NPR shows such as "Performance Today", "Record Shelf", and others exist because of the conservative bent of some listeners and station programmers.

Of course, to paraphrase Prof. Dr. C.T. Yang, he of MIT fame in the early 1950s - "_THIS_ KNBR not same as _THAT_ KNBR - it only con-fuze you".   Its technical quality really went downhill after Susquehanna sold it.

Not to mention "Car Talk" with its frequent 'tree hugger' references and analysis by the hosts of any caller who has a name which doesn't fit "the mold".

Anywho, another update:

My DVDs arrived two days ago, and I called the fulfillment manager at WBAI to thank her for catching the date shipped entry error.  Perhaps volunteering at Pacifica might be a good idea - since I have been fantasizing as of late about becoming the "next Imus". LOL!
Seriously, I've had this dream for as long as I can remember about doing what Imus did.   The only difference between my gig and his: NO politicians!  I would also revive some of his prank calls and practical jokes from 30 years ago and before.

One of the more bizarre artifacts on the web is a transcription of discussions about the start of the first nationwide American radio talkshow.

Herb Jepko had run a talkshow in Salt Lake City at KSL for many years, and another station was interested in running it.  But how to do it?  What quality of interconnect line was needed?  How would advertising be billed and who would get the money?  How would union agreements affect non-union KSL?

Here's the page with a transcript of that 1967 discussion:
http://www.nitecaps.net/KSLmeeting.htm

There was a point - maybe about a year ago or so - where the transition was dramatic.  I remember there was speculation that they were getting ready to turn on HD, and narrowed the bandwidth in preparation.  But that never happened.

A Facebook gateway is now available for both ba.broadcast.moderated and rec.radio.broadcasting.

On your Facebook account, the gateway provides links on your Facebook news feed to ba.broadcast.moderated or rec.radio.broadcasting articles that are available on Google Groups.  All you have to do is "Like" the appropriate page for the newsgroup that you want information about.

For ba.broadcast.moderated, look for Ba.broadcast.moderated (Usenet Newsgroup). For rec.radio.broadcasting, look for Rec.radio.broadcasting (Usenet Newsgroup). The initial capital letter is a quirk of Facebook. You can also suggest the page to your friends through the usual Facebook methods.

It should be noted that what appears on the Facebook page is links to Google Groups. You'll still have to go to Google Groups (or to your regular newsreader) to see the actual articles. This is a notification feed only. Still, it might be a useful way to introduce the newsgroups to those not familiar to Usenet by using technology that might be more familiar to them (Facebook). Instead of doing the sometimes hard work of convincing folks to sign up for news access, or to check Google Groups, all you have to do is invite them to the Facebook page.

To summarize, if you want to use this gateway, all you have to do is "Like" one or both of these pages:

Ba.broadcast.moderated (Usenet Newsgroup)
Rec.radio.broadcasting (Usenet Newsgroup)

Many thanks to Paul Schleck, our Usenet technical consultant, for setting up this feature!

Thank you,
The ba.broadcast.moderated/rec.radio.broadcasting moderation team

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
   1.1 Invitation to participate
   1.2 Charter
   1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
   2.1 Newsgroup focus
   2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

  - 2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
  - 2.4 Programming discussions
  - 2.5 Commercial postings
  - 2.6 Pirate radio
  - 2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
  - 3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
  - 3.2 Civility
  - 3.3 Posting form
  - 3.4 Excessive quoting
  - 3.5 Pseudonyms
  - 3.6 Signature files
  - 3.7 Use of copyrighted material
  - 3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
  - 4.1 Crossposting
  - 4.2 Valid "From" address
  - 4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate

The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

- New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
- Formats and programming
- Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
- Other engineering and technical matters
- Domestic broadcast-band DXing
- Community broadcasting
- Legislation affecting radio stations
- Radio's current and future trends
- Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

- Welcome to Usenet!
- Rules for posting to Usenet
- Hints on writing style for Usenet
- A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
- Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
- Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)

F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their newsreaders properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

---

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

A couple of articles about the situation at Family Radio HQ in Oakland as the organization's leaders prepare for the Rapture tomorrow:

http://www.nytimes.com/2011/05/20/us/20bcjames.html

http://www.salon.com/news/politics/war_room/2011/05/20/camping_may_21_the_end/index.html

Here's a shorter version of the Salon link: http://salon.com/a/sazYfAA

The Salon article has a link to an image of a memo that Harold Camping sent out saying that all employees would have a paid day off today, but the station (KEAR 610KHz here in the Bay Area) is still on the air, so clearly someone is there today. Unless they just set everything to run automatically until 6:00 p.m. on Saturday...

BTW, I thought I saw another article that said the headquarters were in Alameda, but both of those articles say Oakland. Whatever.

Tempting as it may be (and believe me, I'm biting my typing fingers myself to keep from saying more about this situation!), please restrict follow-ups to the subject of Family Radio network itself, as that's the only on-topic aspect for BABM and RRB.

Patty

_Firsthand Account From Family Radio_

My Facebook status last night began:
"I forgot to wear my big floppy shoes and honking rubber nose for the circus at work today."

The whole day was circus-like, and uncomfortable. It was nearly impossible to get any real work done, and most of the "faithful" present had no intention of working anyway. The number of people entering and leaving our building (not the main headquarters across the parking lot) was greater than at any time since we moved there. Headquarters itself was a virtual ghost town.

The crowd mentality was like a class of kindergartners doing a pee-pee dance from excitement- a veritable going away party. Our own TV staff, none of whom are Campingites, refused to accept food or drink from any of the celebrants. We have not forgotten November 1978 and that group of committed faithful. (We did, however, bring our own pizza and cupcakes!)

About a half hour before Open Forum, Camping came into the studio by a different route than usual, avoiding a gathering crowd. Non-staff were banned from the building with the exception of a couple of L.A. Times reporters who were told that they could take notes and record, but Camping would not answer any questions. He wouldn't have anything new to say anyway. Camping said that he had answered all the questions from reporters that he was going to, and that they were all out to get him anyway- he claimed to be "a man under siege." "This is absolutely going to happen!" he declared to the reporters, revealing the level of stress that he was visibly under.

The crowd of listeners and fan(atic)s had gathered in expectation of being able to sit in the Open forum studio as they had been allowed to do for several nights previous. There was great disappointment and anger at being told to exit the building and having the doors locked against them. We stood guard throughout the broadcast to prevent a rush when employees entered and left the building.

Eventually someone produced a boom-box on which they monitored the live broadcast going on inside. There was a lot of cooing and hugging among them as they comforted one another over this, the last ever (one can only hope) live Open Forum, and awaited Camping's exit from the building so they could . . . adore(?) him. He left by an alternate exit not staked out by the faithful, and again there was disappointment and anger as they were not allowed to make their final farewells to the Leader.

As I left the building half an hour after Open Forum had ended, the crowd had not dissipated at all, and there were several reporters still interviewing people in the parking lot. I had to get into my vehicle, start the engine and release the brake (rolling a couple of inches) before people would move out of the way so I could leave, they were so caught up in their circus.

I don't know what will be the state of affairs come Monday morning as far as our jobs with Family Stations, Inc. are concerned. As I've previously posted, my inner predictor swings wildly between total collapse and attempting business as usual. I'm going with the latter until I can't. I'm old enough that I really have no desire to be looking for a job that I'd be unlikely to find anyway, in the current economic climate.

I can say that the great, anguished "Noooooo!" you hear on Sunday morning will be Camping's adoring followers waking up to an unchanged world. Hell on earth will have begun indeed for many of them.

Maybe you didn't play around enough . . it's got everything for the whole country. I spent (entirely too much) time exploring broadcast microwave paths around Northern California-- not to mention Bay Area FM translators and boosters, LPTVs, etc.

A recent CPU with plenty of RAM and a graphics card with a good GPU are definitely recommended, but that's largely true for Google Earth anyway. It wants to update every time you move around the terrain, and it can be frustratingly slow to update at times (even on my quad core processor with 4 GB RAM), I think due to the sheer amount of info available, but otherwise I found it interesting and more than potentially useful.

Try un-checking everything except the one category you want to examine, and I think you'll have more success with it.

Then download on the website was for a 1kb file that included only stations in the Kansas City area.  I didn't find any other files anywhere and I looked all over the website.  Can you point me to a better page that has the full download?

The link provided should have taken you to a page that has a large download icon about 1/3 down the screen . . that's what I used.

The page: http://fccinfo.com/fccinfo_google_earth.php

Direct KMZ download: http://ge.fccinfo.com/fccinfo.kmz

Hope that helps.

I might also suggest that you zoom in to an area of interest and the overlay should appear. The info in the sidebar changes constantly as you scroll your view around-- this being the source of some slowness, but also providing good information.

Worked fine for me in Firefox on a Mac. I clicked the Download icon, and it not only downloaded the KMZ file, but launched Google Earth. As usual, GE opened into a closeup of my neighborhood, but as soon as I clicked on "AM Stations" and zoomed out (and turned off all the annoying overlays that always seem to open even though I keep unchecking them), I saw markers for KDOW in Palo Alto, KGO in Newark, and several stations in San Jose. A handy KMZ file, thanks!

I don't know what you're getting, but I'm getting a file called fccinfo.kmz that is only 279 bytes in size.  When I doubleclick on it and load Google Earth to read it I get in the Temporary Places tree a section called FCCInfo. Under that I get a choice of AM, FM, and TV stations, ASR towers, Broadcast Microwave, and something that says Cavell Mertz & Associates which has nothing in the tree under it.

Under the AM section I get a list of just 9 stations, KCNW, KCZZ, KDTD, KKLO, etc.

Under the FM I get sbout 23 stations including CPs.  When I click on the FMs I notice that all the transmitter sites are between Topeka and Kansas City.

I'm not sure what I'm supposed to do to get other cities, but that's all I get.  I have never used Google Earth to look at anything in the KC MO area, so there is no reason for GE to home there.  I just looked at my saved locations, tours, and whatnot and see no reference to anything in Missouri, Kansas, or anything else near there, so it's nothing wrong with my Google Earth.

What gives?

Oh, this is weird. I turned off the overlay, moved the map to the Bay Area and turned it on and then things began appearing. For some reason it defaults to the KC/Topeka area.

Thanks.

I havn't heard it or heard of any problems with it, but I can imagine what it would sound like and I'm glad they got it off the air. Jerks at ad agencies in the past have used car horns, sirens and ringing telephones in commercials---to the confusion of listeners. On one or two occasions during my years in radio I was able to persuade managements to get agencies to change them on the ground that the station shouldn't be broadcasting something that might cause an accident. "Where's that horn coming from? Who's honking at me? For what?"

Don't forget that the EAS burst (202 modem carrier) contains headers, footers, event codes, region codes, and other information that has to line up with the programming in a station's decoder. One item out of place or incorrect and the message is ignored. Unless nefarious intent was present, it is most highly unlikely that a random burst of even genuine 202 data (which has its own self-validation) would present any sort of problem to stations monitoring the broadcast for EAS purposes.

All that said, I think the current system is flaw-ridden in the extreme...but this isn't one of those flaws. It should also be noted that this is the first system (previous systems included EANS and EBS) that has actually worked well enough that it has served in real emergency notifications.

I wasn't referring to its actually setting off the receivers, but to the annoyance factor.

I was fortunate enough to live in Los Angeles (for a year at broadcasting school) just as these guys were ramping up. They (all four? Or maybe just a couple of them) had a show on KPFK on late Saturday nights, something like 10:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. I remember them doing some of the skits that later showed up on Firesign's records. One of the golden days of radio!

Firesign Thaetre Roots   tedalvy.com/fst.htm

In a January 20, 1967 FREEP article, L.A. Free Press writer Nat Freedland listed Radio Free Oz on KPFK-FM Sundays through Thursdays from 11 p.m. until 2 a.m.

July 24 - The first broadcast of Radio Free Oz over KPFK-FM [Los Angeles] (Peter and various collaborators on the air five nights a week until March.)

November 17 - The Firesign Theatre's first performance, "The Oz Film Festival," a three-hour improvisation on Radio Free Oz.

1967

March - The first broadcast of a four-hour radio documentary on the American Indian, written and produced by Peter, David and Phil A., followed by a weekend Colloquium, followed by the first LOVE-IN, organized by Radio Free Oz, which moved to KRLA-AM [Los Angeles] the same day (March 26th).

Peace, Ted Alvy

Don Van Vliet fans:

My friend Sleepy John Cuthbertson was a hippy FM Rock deejay on KZEL FM Eugene, Oregon.

Sleepy John drives north from Seattle, Washington on Saturday Nights so he can do a volunteer radio show on KSER FM 90.7 (Independent Public Radio) in Everett, Washington.

RIP Don Van Vliet aka Captain Beefheart.

Peace, Ted Alvy (Cosmos Topper) tedalvy.com

The U.S. Congress recently passed the Local Community Radio Act of 2010, which will expand the number of low-power FM stations by reducing the required minimum spacing between them and full-power stations. As it worked its way through Congress, the technical requirements for the separation were tweaked and the bill eventually gained the support of the NAB, which had originally opposed it.

I haven't been able to find any articles about the bill on large online news sites, but here's an article from Radio World, which appears to be an industry site:

http://www.rwonline.com/article/110948

This next article is on the website of the group that organized the effort to create the bill, so it's not neutral, but it does give a lot more information about who supported it:

http://www.prometheusradio.org/node/2438

I was frustrated that all of the articles talked about technical requirements for the new stations, but not whether they would have to actually have local content rather than syndicated feeds (note the support of several national religious organizations), so I went looking for the bill itself. Here it is:

http://www.thomas.gov/home/gpoxmlc111/h6533_enr.xml

So this bill really did only address technical issues, expanding the existing LPFM service. I didn't feel like spending a lot of time rooting around the FCC site for more details, but I did find their main LPFM page:

http://www.fcc.gov/mb/audio/lpfm/index.html

And this page about licensing requirements on the GPO website:

http://edocket.access.gpo.gov/cfr_2009/octqtr/47cfr73.853.htm

There are links to more sections of the CFR here:

http://www.fcc.gov/mb/audio/bickel/amfmrule.html#LPFM

Anyway, the bottom line seems to be that as long as a group can establish a local entity to hold the license, they can put whatever content they want on the air. I don't see anything that prohibits syndicated programming and requires the station to actually serve the local community. I guess we'll just have to hope that some of them do.

Here's the NPR story that originally brought my attention to the bill:

http://www.npr.org/2010/12/13/132032417/Bid-To-Revive-Community-Radio-Stalls-In-Senate

(As the URL indicates, this story aired on Dec. 13th. The bill was later un-stalled in the Senate.)

Patty

I keep thinking about this and looking at it, and more and more I think this is a bad thing.

As consumer radio receivers get worse and worse, the response is to try and shoehorn more stations into the band.

I think LPFM stations are a great idea when there is space for them, but I think dropping the third-adjacent rule and the like is not going to make actual space for them, it's just going to result in poorer reception for existing stations, and LPFM stations whose actual range is far more limited than it should be.

None of that will change, and to be honest I think those are the problems,
NOT the third-adjacent rule.  Force the class A as well as the LPFM station to have a certain amount of local content, force them to actually make some attempt at serving the public.  Shut down the stations that are not doing this or let them shut down on their own and THEN you will have less band congestion.

Right now if I tune across the FM band here in Hampton, VA, I can find three stations playing exactly the same song.  They are all playing off automation systems.  This is not serving the public.

Yes, this is true of LPFM stations as well as conventional AM and FM stations. If you look at the license database you will find that the vast majority of LPFM licenses are assigned to Christian broadcasting combines that use them effectively as unattended operations broadcasting network material directly off a satellite feed.

I think this is a terrible thing and a total misuse of the LPFM license, but no more so than the local 50KW "classic rock" station that does exactly the same thing on a larger scale.

This is what always happens when any service is opened up: the religious broadcasters instantly do a frequency grab. Look at the noncomm/educational band.

Loenzo Milam and Jeremy Lansman thought the grab for the sub-92 stations by applicants who were neither non-commercial nor educational. The Jesus stations mobilized and did a major campaign against the "Petition Against God", and the wusses at the FCC denied what I thought was a perfectly crafted petition in short order.

The usual remark when the topic of LPFM came about was "just what we need: a couple thousand more Jesus stations."

I think that if the stations can in fact show that they are providing a public service and are filling a need in the community for a Christian station which is currently unfilled, they should be licensed.

But then, I think the same requirement should also be made for any other organization of any sort applying for a license or license renewal.

However, it appears that the problem will soon be going away, since Family Radio is currently assuring us that the Rapture will take place on May 21.

Okay, as I know/knew it, ASCAP rules go like this:

(1) The license for broadcast only covers the broadcast to radios.  If a station is broadcast over a PA system to, say, a retail store or a cafe, that business establishment owes a public performance fee to ASCAP.

(2) There is an exception for retail establishments informally called the "Hot Dog Stand Rule", where the owner of a hotdog stand challenged ASCAP on its license fees arguing that his playing a radio at his stand was for his private entertainment only, not for the entertainment of customers.

ASCAP or a court or somebody apparently ruled that if the audio unit is a self-contained stereo or boom box or something where only the existing speakers are used, then no fee is owed because it's deemed to be used for the entertainment of the employee, no the customers.  HOWEVER, if the audio is piped through a PA system or through speakers not part of the self-contained audio system then it IS considered entertainment for customers and is therefore not exempt, and ASCAP public performance fees are owed.

Can anybody here clarify this for me and/or point me in some direction where I can see a real ruling or contract info or something?

Thanks.

And yes, I do intend to contact ASCAP directly, it's just that I'd like to be able to get a faster answer here first.

Anyone KNOW why radio stations insist on using flash for audio instead of normal audio formats like Windows, MP3, etc?  I see no advantage since it won't work on Apple products and HTML 5 has audio built in.
Just makes the listener's job more difficult.  Makes no sense.

I'm with you on not liking Flash on radio station streaming sites, Dave! But FYI, it does work on most Apple products. I can't remember whether Flash support is built into Mac OS X or whether you have to add a plug-in, but I view Flash sites all the time on this MacBook and my big Mac Pro.

However, I believe it would be a problem with an iPhone or iPad. Or has some third party come up with a Flash app for them?

One suggestion, if you haven't tried it already, is to see whether the station is available via iTunes. I know of some stations that have their own Flash-based players but are also accessible (via an MP3 feed, I presume) through iTunes. Another advantage of the latter is that you can quickly change from station to station without having to switch between different websites or media players.

Patty

Can anyone recommend a broadcast engineer for a possible few hours of backup work out on Long Island?  Ought to be someone with some computer knowledge

The most likely reason flash is used for streaming is that it is OS and browser independent.  Until Apple decided not to support Flash, it didn't matter to the sender which OS, which device or indeed where the user was. That's also why YouTube still mostly uses Flash.  HTML5 right now is mostly a concept for most internet users, and it also requires different encoding equipment.

You can blame Apple if it does not work on IPhones or Ipads, it was a deliberate choice on its part to not include support for Flash nor allow Flash add-ons.

Thanks Patty.  As an update, I see all CBS affiliates are now using Flash for audio streaming (with the exception of WTOP).  I'm guessing that CBS is requiring the use of Flash.  Since Flash won't work with the iPhone and iPad, CBS has released apps for that.  Here is my rhetorical question -- wouldn't have been easier for CBS to stick with platform neutral mp3's or other audio CODECS?

While I'm venting, I have to wonder what radio would have been like if the FCC didn't standardize it?  I guess we would have had the stations using the Microsoft transmitters requiring the use of radios with Silver Light and Windows audio.  The broadcasters using Apple transmitters would require receivers to be AAC.  And there there are the Live365 stations that are something else.  Wish the FCC would standardize streaming audio so it is open.  Ah, I feel much better now!  Thanks for listening.

Dave,

For iPod/iPhone, look into the Tunein Radio app. It's well worth the $2.99 cost. The only radio groups I haven't had any luck pulling are Clear Channel (there's iHeartRadio for that for free) and Lincoln Financial.

|  So is MP3. Flash is overkill for audio streaming.

Any codec is OS and browser-independent if there is a version of it available for the desired platform. For some Linux distros (e.g. Fedora), one has to go to additional effort to get mp3 support.

That said, the radio-station streaming practice that I abhor is the insistence on special clients, often functional only on Windows systems, that are there to try to push garish advertising at you. They are bloated and pointless.

An excellent use of Flash is the online player for France-Info (the national all-news network in France, www.france-info.com). It lets you know the name of the current segment, along with the names of those immediately preceding (so that you can go back and listen to them) and those that are coming up. So if a station uses Flash for something more than just being a player and pushing ads, then I think it could be a good thing.

One motivating factor for some stations is music licensing and server operations. Many contemporary automation systems can generate a web stream while simultaneously feeding the air chain, and those streams contain meta-data that can be collected at the stream server and can be correlated with server data to account for each song, each play and each listener. It can be expensive to set up and maintain your own server, which carries its own expense.

Large streaming vendors are well equipped to provide data collection services for their clients, as well as having the "big pipe" Internet connections to facilitate potentially large numbers of listeners. All the station has to do is provide a single stream out of their playout system. (And, BTW, a blanket license for Internet music streaming is astronomically expensive, so you either do the accounting or you don't stream!)

After 11 years of doing our own mp3 Shoutcast streaming, we recently farmed out our streaming to a third party. It's less expensive than hiring qualified personnel to continue with the DIY method.

With the third party service comes the almost inevitable Flash player, one value of which is that, in addition to a customized interface for your organization, it can also relay song meta-data easier than if you were using a combo of mp3/Windows player and pushing the song data to a web page. In our case our streaming vendor also provides mp3 and ..asx streams, but of course without the meta-data.

Some stations or networks are so caught up in corporate imaging that the bean-counters and mid-to-upper level management can't see beyond a custom Flash interface to push ads and promotions to listeners (who have almost certainly minimized their player!), and they can't conceive of providing or allowing alternate streams that don't carry ads and promos, even if their streaming vendor is capable; the lost listeners are irrelevant, as they wouldn't see the ads anyway.

Welcome to Music Streaming Commerce-101.

MP3 however cannot for example also carry let's say a weather forecast or allow a station to promote upcoming programming.  I note that many public radio stations with streaming via MP3 (m3u for example) don't always manage to insert their reminder that streaming costs money and is paid for by the contributors to the station without somehow not managing to provide the content after the reminder.  It can be really annoying if you have contributed to that station but cannot get a reliable connection without reconnecting several times.

Some commercial stations with flash also offer ads and if that helps offset some of the cost of streaming, so be it.  As much as I consider flash players bloated and at times a security risk, flash has been reliable delivering audio for me.

Probably to make it harder to save the content to disk? There are lots of apps that save complete and streaming MP3 files to disk, but few that do it for Flash. aTubeCatcher is one that does it for Flash files, but not for streams that I'm aware of.

There a number of utilities out there (for the Mac, at least) that can save any sound the computer makes from whatever source to a file. If it is audio directed to a sound card, it can be captured in a file.

As I recall, one of the salient "features" of XP (and presumable later Windows releases) involved internal handling of audio in some ultra-secure way so that an application that tried to do that would shut down the playback. I recall as well the problems people were having trying to play media and the OS was stubbornly refusing, claiming "violations".

Bill was trying to demonstrate to the copyright industry that they could securely lock down everything on his platform. iTunes sort of blew that apart.

The Usenet newsgroup rec.radio.broadcasting is active and open for business. While currently a low-traffic newsgroup, there is a team of moderators actively monitoring the group. There is someone available every day to review and approve posts.

The moderation team is currently working on a set of updated guidelines, building on the work that the newsgroup's founder, Bill Pfeiffer, did for many years until his untimely death.

In the years subsequent to Bill's death, many other forums for discussing radio broadcasting have sprung up. Given the breadth and depth of Internet applications available, this isn't a surprising development. All these forums serve a purpose and can maintain a healthy coexistence.

It should be noted that the only rec.radio.broadcasting is the Usenet newsgroup of that name. The newsgroup is not affiliated with any other newsgroup, mailing list, Yahoo! group, Google group, message board, or other forum. Any claims to the contrary are not true.

Any claims that rec.radio.broadcasting is no longer an active newsgroup are not true.

The current moderation team volunteered to assume moderation duties last year. The previous moderator agreed to transfer those duties to the team, and that transfer has been approved by the Big 8 Moderation Board, and by Russ Allbery, who maintains the Usenet newsgroup moderator submission forwarding aliases at isc.org.

Once again, an active team of moderators is overseeing rec.radio.broadcasting, and all posts that are submitted are reviewed, usually within a day of being submitted.

The moderation team hopes to have an updated set of posting guidelines available soon, but don't let that stop you. If you have something to say that's pertinent to radio broadcasting, rec.radio.broadcasting is open for business and awaiting your participation.

Thank you,
the rec.radio.broadcasting moderation team

Now, here's an interesting sort of question.

A friend of mine programs a "Music Of Your Life" type station, and my problem is that although I really love jazz standards and big band music, I find it almost unlistenable because the playlist is so short.

I like Sinatra too, but Sinatra recorded hundreds of great songs.  Consequently there is no reason to play "My Way" over and over a dozen times a day and neglect almost everything else.

Likewise you will never, ever turn on this station and hear the Kenton band, Tito Puente (or any of the other latin bands that were topping the charts in the thirties and forties), or for that matter any of the newer generation of performers.

So, I am sad to hear these stations basically failing in the same way that oldies stations, classic rock stations, and really just about every radio format today is failing the listener.  Is this really what the listener wants?

What's unfortunate is that the common listener is not the same as the music geek.  You and I are music geeks; are are not the average listeners.  Time and again radio station programmers have discovered that whatever the format, the top 40 of that genre is what most people prefer to hear.  They want the familiar.  So, if you're going to get a mass audience for an already marginal music format, you pretty much have to play the hits of that format.

It seems that some local TV stations in West Coast markets have sent reporters to Japan. Have any radio stations (anywhere in the US) done anything similar? Or has radio news atrophied so much that such a thing is no longer conceivable?

Good question. I'm not aware of KGO or KCBS sending anyone over there. I just checked the websites of a few news stations in L.A.

and Seattle and also didn't see any mention of that. Even the two stations that are co-owned with TV stations (KNX and KOMO) didn't mention a TV person being in Japan. I guess everyone's just picking up reports from their affiliated networks. Or they have sent their own reporters, but as is all too common, you can't find a darn thing about the stations themselves on their websites.

Hi,

I was wondering if you knew of a way I could get actual broadcast recordings from WSRF, mainly for the years 1981-84.
It was a great AM station and I was saddened when they changed programming.  I had to resort to 98Gold (980) which was Ok, but not as good.

Thanks!

Mitch

The link below is supposed to be a picture of the WHLO studio in the mid 60's.  Can anyone confirm this, the year, and who the DJ is?
http://www.flickr.com/photos/radio_daze/5436202890/sizes/l/

I have my doubts.  Most radio stations have some sort of banner and logo that is displayed for any pictures, which I don't see.  I also doubt that the picture was mid 60's because continuous loop tapes were in use in the early 60's, and there are none to be seen.  Finally, all the coffee suggests that this was a late-night or over-night shift, which WHLO didn't have.

Dave,

POSTED originally on http://groups.google.com/group/northcountrygreens/browse_thread/thread/edd7c35f43e6724f?hl=en:
on March 11, 2011

I was 7 years ago "accidentally" introduced to this wonderful progressive news and discussion and cultural outlet while working part-time at a hotel.

My boss streamed it during his shift there and I learned a lot from WBAI.

Now I am stating the following assuming the possible following conditions:

- WBAI(and pacifica in general) are so broke that they cannot afford to staff the myriad positions just at WBAI's studios in lower Manhattan.

And here is my statement:

It is all but impossible to reach a human being at WBAI through any of their phone numbers.  Not even their reception number reaches a receptionsist!  212-209-2800.  None of the department options works either - but tells you "this mail box is not set up".

On the other hand, when it is fundraising month, BOY ohh BOY is it easy to get ahold of a live person!!!  When they want your contribution you'd beter BET they'll have someone ready to answer the phone!!!

In my case, I made a donation and qualified for the premium of a three DVD set called "Zeitgeist".  It is now going on a month since I called during their last fund drive and I have yet to see those DVDs in my mail.

I called EVERY phone number listed on BAI's website, from the receptionist on down - programming, public affairs, local station board, volunteers, engineering department - all getting the same response:  "This user's mailbox is not set up.  Good bye."

Unless financial conditions are setting a precedent for this situation, I must say this has really dampened my appeal for WBAI at least.  I have not called other Pacifica stations as the NY one is the closest and makes the most sense for me to call.

I'm sorry to say but WBAI needs to do something about their NON-FUNDRAISING phone contact numbers or I will probably spend a lot less time listening to BAI or recommending them to other people to listen too.

I hate to do that, but this is getting frustrating,

Regards,

ChrisCoaster,
"Frequent but increasingly disenfranchised listener to the NY WBAI outlet of Pacifica Radio"

POSTED: April 7, 2011
Just an update:
As of the third week of March I finally did reach the WBAI operator and explained to her what premium I pledged for and how much. She explained to me that those DVDs would probably start going out two to three weeks after our call.

As of the date/time of this post I still have not received the 3-DVD premium. I called today and again failed to speak to a human being. What I don't understand is why during this 2011 February Fund drive it is taking two to three months for premiums to be mailed out where as in the past it took me less than three WEEKS to receive the item for the amount I pledged.

At this point I really don't care if I ever see those DVDs - by the way they are the "Zeitgeist" trilogy: ZEITGEIST, ZEITGEIST: Addendum, and ZEITGEIST: Moving Forward. A very important set of DVDs to have along side the collection of Beverly Hills 90210 past episodes, if I may say so. However, you don't have to buy these DVDs - you can see all three films at http://www.zeitgeistmovie.com or via youtube.

WBAI can keep my $125 pledge and perhaps use it to fix their non-functional voice-mail box system, or better yet HIRE SOME PEOPLE to ANSWER THEIR PHONES!!

Maybe you should go visit their studios and offer to help answer phones. You're right that Pacifica operates on a shoestring.  Here in the SF Bay Area where Pacifica began in 1949 KPFA has always been one step from disaster. That's the way it works with this kind of radio.

So, GO VOLUNTEER your time to help out WBAI.  They'll appreciate it.

That is, in fact, why I was posting.  It looks like they are just changing the screen grid bias, so I could imagine some situations where that could be the case.

I am assuming that if I really wanted to reduce the power, the sane thing to do would be to reduce the B+ voltage to the final?

Yup.  I was hoping to find someone old enough to remember setting these things up for regular use.  I dragged this one out and started cleaning it up because the 160 MHz auxiliary channels are totally unused in our area, and the 950 Mhz stuff is very crowded.  And you know, this thing doesn't sound bad.  Down 3dB at 8 Khz which may be a transformer issue.

Of course, there are numerous ways to trim the output stage power. Adjusting plate voltage is one, but to avoid over-dissipating the screen, both screen and plate voltage should be adjusted together. Another way is to adjust the loading, as you mentioned earlier. Due to those "sweetspot" considerations that I mentioned, the loading should only be used for minor power adjustments during operation. As I'm sure you are aware, stage tuning and loading go hand in hand.

We're using the 160MHz channels in our area as well, since everyone else went to 450MHz. But I've only had to deal with RPU gear in the past ten years, so I missed the joys of Marti tube gear. FWIW, the very first piece of auxiliary broadcast gear I ever laid hands on nearly forty years ago was a Moseley PCL-303. It was solid state, of course, and back then transistors that could operate at 950MHz were still considered magic.

I'm not familiar with that particular transmitter, so my response will be in general terms.

>From your description, it has tetrodes in the final, since you refer to screen voltage.  With tetrodes, power output is controlled by screen voltage.  Putting a variac in the screen supply primary was a very standard method of doing this for things like day-night power reduction.  You might tell us what tubes are in the unit for buffer-driver and final stages.

Yes, a final tweak when you go to full power is a good idea, but you should not need to move things very far to get right back in the center of the sweet spot.

As to running on the TUNE position permanently for reduced power, it depends.  Assuming the TUNE-OPERATE control does operate by lowering screen voltage, how does it do this, and how many stages are affected.
You may be doing this through resistors, with a setup intended only for short duty cycle operation in the TUNE mode.  As a Variac in the screen supply implies, best method is to use an effective change in the turns ratios in the devices between the power in and the screen supply rectifier input.

>Not only that, if I set the antenna coupling for reduced power, is that >going to extend the life of the finals?

I don't see why it would. You don't want to detune the output tank on a Class C amplifier---it gets its efficiency by pulsing the tank at the right point in the cycle. And if you're decoupling by reducing mutual inductance between the tank and the antenna feed, yes, you'll reduce power going to the antenna, but may not reduce average plate current by much.

As I've said, with tetrodes, you'll control plate current with screen voltage/current as a throttle. No real need to reduce plate B+ if the plate and screen supplies are separate. Also watch for upsetting things in prior stages if you lower plate and screen voltages to them.

Anyone who lived in Eastern Massachusetts in the last half of the twentieth century probably listened to, or watched, Don Kent.
I recently learned that he died a week or so ago, at 92.  WBZ put up a nice retrospective for him:
http://www.wbz.com/topnews/Don-Kent-dies-at-92/6477378

I lived in that part of the world for about half that period, and have my own memories of Kent and his forecasting.  I remember, in particular, the 1978 February snowstorm, which he called to a T.  He said it was going to be bad, and while I went to work that day, I didn't wait too long after the snow started to head for home.  30 miles on back roads, but I got home---more than the people who waited and took the major highways did.

And, a couple of years later, a group of us had jobs that were long commutes by car, but the work location was right on an airport, and we had airplanes, so commuted by air when we could.  We got daily weather briefings from the official sources, but also listened to Kent.  I can't remember now which source was more often right, but Kent could read the weather by looking out the window and knowing what the wind was on Mt. Washington about as well as the Gov't pros could with all their met data.

Kent retired a few years later---from WBZ---but was forecasting for local stations until about five years ago.  That was nearly sixty years.

So, another legend is gone.

Thanks for this.  I remember Don on 'BZ from the time I was a wee lad in the early 1960's.  My dad, who worked outdoors, used to cuss him out for being wrong, but he watched Don Kent religiously every morning and evening.  He was a member of our family.  RIP Don.

On WBZ in the 1970's Larry Glick used to play this tuneful, swaggering German march song, accompanied by war sounds, during the 0515 Farm &

Market Report. The poor guy would be dutifully reciting the costs of various agricultural commodities at top speed over the telephone, and all the while Der Krauwinkler's Lamstruf (spelling? Larry's name for it) would be blazing away along with heavy artillery. Once, I requested in it the earlier portion of his program and he kindly obliged with the full retinue of sound effects.

I would pay a fair price to find a recording of this wondrous tune, if no other reason than old times' sake. Anybody have a copy of this piece?

Thanks,
Bruce

Following up to my earlier post about Richard Ward Fatherley, Kansas City historian and former program director of Storz's WHB, it's sad to report that he passed away on March 8 at the age of 69.

A few weeks earlier, Fatherley had fallen after suffering a heart attack. The Kansas City Star's Aaron Barnhart had published a remembrance on his TV Barn blog on February 20.
(http://blogs.kansascity.com/tvbarn/2010/02/fatherley.html)

Curiously, though, after Fatherley's death, there wasn't a follow-up in the Star until March 25.
(http://www.kansascity.com/2010/03/25/1837160/tribute-richard-ward-fatherleys.html).

In St. Louis, where Fatherley had worked at KXOK, starting in 1964 until being dispatched by the Storz chain to Kansas City in 1967, the online Globe-Democrat news site posted a brief story about his death on March 15.
(http://www.globe-democrat.com/news/2010/mar/15/dishing-it-out/)

The length of time it took the Star to publish news of Fatherley's passing caused a slight dust-up between the Star's Barnhart and former Star gossip columnist Hearne Christopher, who now posts on a site called KC Confidential. Christopher criticized the newspaper for not having anything about Fatherley's death in the Star's print editions other than a brief obituary. Barnhart pointed out that he had posted a story online and that other news crowded out a longer treatment of Fatherley's career. (You can see this exchange at http://www.kcconfidential.com/?p=13838#more-13838.)

While Barnhart made some fair points, it still seemed (and seems) odd that it took the Star two and a half weeks to publish something about a man who did so much to shape Kansas City radio, not just through his work on WHB, but for other stations, too, and in advertising and marketing. Fatherley also documented the history of WHB and produced audio documentaries of the station's heyday as a Top 40 giant, with a 10,000 watt regional signal that reached into six states. Where I lived in southern Iowa, I could receive both KIOA from Des Moines and WHB, and much preferred WHB, which had an exciting big-city sound that you just don't get on radio any more. Surely I must have heard Fatherley many times, but I remember his voice mostly from his later voice-over work and documentaries. It's a shame to lose his voice and his memories so soon.

Another commercial classical FM flips to noncom.

The classical format on commercial radio moved from "endangered species" closer to "extinct" over the past year, when prominent standard-bearers WQXR New York and WCRB Boston were sold to public broadcasters who converted them to noncommercial operation. Another leading commercial classical voice, the Lutheran Church-owned KFUO-FM in St. Louis, is embroiled in legal and political battles stemming from church leaders' attempts to sell the big class C0 signal to a religious broadcaster. Now Seattle's KING-FM (98.1) is laying the groundwork to end more than half a century of commercial classical radio in the Puget Sound area. "With all the changes in media in the United States, commercial advertising is no longer a fit for KING," said Christopher Bayley, president of the board of the community nonprofit group that's operated the station since its founders, the Bullitt family, donated it as part of the dissolution of their King Broadcasting group in 1995.

+ What's next for KING-FM.

Bayley says there's a lot of work to be done before KING-FM makes the switch to listener-supported status. The "Beethoven" group, which has been operating the station for the benefit of the Seattle Symphony, Seattle Opera and ArtsFund, has to create a new non-profit corporation to own the station, win FCC approval for the flip to noncommercial status, join the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, ramp up a fundraising campaign to begin collecting listener dollars, and wind down the commercial ad sales, which have been conducted on KING-FM's behalf by Fisher Communications. If all goes according to plan, KING-FM will play its last commercial on June 30, 2011. Barring more format changes or sales between now and then, that will leave only a handful of commercial classical FM stations remaining around the country.

+ Who's left?

Once KING-FM takes its big voice noncommercial (it's a 66-kw/2320' full class C from the West Tiger Mountan master-antenna site), it will leave just four big-market commercial classical stations in the US. Two have noncommercial owners: city-owned WRR, Dallas (101.1) and Chicago's WFMT (98.7), which operates commercially but is owned by Chicago public broadcaster WTTW-TV. Then there's Robert Conrad's venerable WCLV, Cleveland, which downgraded to a rimshot facility almost a decade ago. That leaves Entercom's KDFC-FM, San Francisco (102.1) as the last of a dying breed of full-market, fully-commercial classical FMs. Entercom also runs classical programming on an AM in Kansas City (KXTR 1660), where it's also heard on the HD2 subchannel of one of Entercom's FMs. You don't need much more than two hands' worth of fingers to count the rest: Mapleton's KBOQ (103.9) in Monterey, CA; foundation-owned KDB, Santa Barbara (93.7); American General Media's KHFM, Santa Fe, NM (95.5); Judson Group's WCRI, Block Island, RI (95.9); Ken Squier's WCVT, Stowe, VT (101.7); Sandab's WFCC (107.5) on Cape Cod; Davis Media's WBQK (107.9) in the Norfolk, VA market; and three Nassau "W-Bach" outlets on the Maine coast. By contrast, when the first edition of the "M Street Radio Directory" (ancestor to The Radio Book) came out in 1989, it listed 32 commercial classical FMs and more than half a dozen commercial classical AMs.

Well, here's the problem: it's the music.

We have here in Williamsburg, VA. a local commercial classical station that opened up just a couple years ago, and which seems to be doing very well. You can turn on WBQK any time and hear Pachelbel's Canon or Vivaldi's Four Seasons.  The thing is, there's only a limited number of times I can listen to the Four Seasons without going off my nut.  The playlist is as short as a typical Oldies format station.

They advertise themselves as having "relaxing classical music," in such a way that they seem to be positioning themselves in the market as a sort of upscale easy listening station.

Now, from a profitability standpoint this might be effective, and it's possible that it's the only way to keep classical music profitable over the long term.  But I think it doesn't do justice to the music at all.

For the most part, what is interesting about classical music is that it isn't relaxing at all.  Unlike easy listening music, it's music that you are supposed to listen carefully to.  Treating it as a utility product is not promoting the music and it's not promoting the importance of the music.

What's happening is that kids aren't listening to classical music, and I think some of that is because kids aren't really listening to _any_ music, they're just letting it pour into their ears twenty-four hours a day without really paying attention to it.  I blame the lack of music classes in schools for some of this, but that's not all of it.  It's a genuine cultural shift and it's going to hit _all_ radio eventually.

So what is the current licensing status on these?  Do I need to get an auxiliary license added to the station license like with the STL, or do I just call the local frequency coordinator and ask to book the frequency for certain days?  I remember this being covered on the first phone test but a lot of things have changed since I took the test....

Yes, those must be licensed for routine use. The difficulty in doing that will depend upon where you are located. Here in the San Francisco Bay Area, the channels are packed. Even use of a licensed channel requires spot coordination by anyone planning use that might spill out of his immediate service area.

The bottom line is it needs to be licensed and you need to coordinate.

The Four Seasons is lovely, indeed.  I worked for a couple years at a station that did classical on Sundays for about 8 hours.  Even with that limited exposure, the Four Seasons repeated more than once a season.

Thank goodness for Ernest Ansermet's Orchestre de la Suisse Romande recordings because they were FRESH!  They sounded really hot.  But, after exhausting all those, I went back to the older discs nobody ever played.  It's no wonder. The older LPs were very old-farty sounding, and the reason why I hated the classics in the first place.  Old RCA records featuring Stravinsky, Stokowski, etc., bored me to tears.

>They advertise themselves as having "relaxing classical music," in such >a way that they seem to be positioning themselves in the market as a sort >of upscale easy listening station.

That is EXACTLY the point.  People listen to music to be entertained, not to be culturally uplifted.  Exactly the same thing has happened to jazz.  People don't listen to jazz to hear triplets and diminished triads played in odd time signatures.  They listen to hear soothing music they can put on in the background while drinking wine and having sex.

In the, uh, old days, both jazz and classical stations existed mainly because some jazz and classical geeks with a few extra dollars were able to file for FM licenses nobody else wanted and operate stations cheaply.  When they sold or retired, the next owners came in to make money.  Can't make money in jazz or classical unless you have a very tight playlist and play the top 40 of the genre.

>Now, from a profitability standpoint this might be effective, and it's

As long as you have commercial broadcasting you're never going to do justice to the music.  Commercial radio isn't about doing justice; it's about selling ads.  Always has been.

>What's happening is that kids aren't listening to classical music, and I

Following the local music scene in the San Francisco Bay Area I beg to differ, at least with audiences here.  Over at Coda the other night, the Jazz Mafia (which is the umbrella group for 6 bands) performed to a packed house of people mostly in their 20s.

There is a local group called Classical Revolution (which began at the Revolution Cafe) that performs intricate classical pieces in venues ranging from bookstores to cafes and streetcorners, hopefully for free when they can. They're developiing a following here.

However, if classical music is what Michael Tilson Thomas and the San Francisco Symphony are up to (winner of 3 Grammies this past session), then classical is doomed.  Their repertoire and their arranging are BORING as hell.

>I blame the lack of music classes in schools >for some of this, but that's not all of it.  It's a genuine cultural shift

I blame the SF Symphony and others like it for making old farty music sound even more old farty.  I wish the late Calvin Simmons had lived.  He was one of the few major symphony conductors who got it.

Also WRR, Dallas, WCCC, Hartford, KLEF, Anchorage. WFMT is actually a special case because of their programming distribution network. Did you read about how K-Mozart going country in LaLa land caused KUSC to be flooded with more money in contributions than they were prepared to handle? My moral dilemma is that I like to listen to a bunch of non-coms on line but can only afford to support one in a decent mannor, so I visit 'my local APMG station' (http://classicalsouthflorida.publicradio.org) twice a year. What is happening in St. Louis can not bother me too much because three years ago, a christian school sold their station to APMG which became my classical music station in Miami, so these things go both ways.

Actually in general, the commercial classical stations were making money by attracting advertisers who wanted access to the classical audience. That being said, what really happened in places like Philadelphia was that station owners could get really high offers for the station and opted to sell. The format likely could have continued earning some rate of return indefinitely in most of those same markets. In some of the markets, the flipped formats likely haven't ever pulled in as much audience or advertiser earnings as the replaced classical formats.

Jazz hasn't really been a commercial format in large markets for quite some time, and non-commercial jazz seems to be shrinking in outlets, mostly because the market for jazz has become so fragmented. It also didn't help when "smooth jazz" became a commercially viable format for a relatively short time. Of course, there are lots of music formats that most folks won't hear on the radio, however I suspect that radio also isn't a driving force for younger listeners either.

Here's what you have to understand about commercial radio.  Regardless of format, it's about Playing The Hits.  (This includes news and talk, which must play the hit topics).  Once you stray from The Hits, audiences flee, ratings drop, and the revenue is gone.  Every genre of music, from classical to country, has its hits.   The only, I repeat only way to success in commercial radio is to confine your station's playlist to hit music of whatever genre you've picked.

Over and over and over again, longer playlists have equaled plunging audience shares.  When people say they want more variety, what most of them really mean is they want to hear their favorite songs more often. If you really give them variety, they're gone.

KBAY (the original, real KBAY at 100.3) sported a playlist of over 3000 selections. That's amazing for an "easy listening" station. Even more amazing was the fact that KBAY was the only station able to routinely trounce KOIT in the book. For several years, they were neck and neck.

Until ARS worked its magic and destroyed the station, KBAY was a major force to be reckoned with.

You may wald about this BUT "Familiar Favourites" stands out: why would one want to hear much UNfamiliar material? IT's seldom mournful.

Not quite. The W-Bach network is programmed from Nassau Broadcasting in Boston, formerly at the commercial WCRB.

Does it matter with background instrumentals? Do people really "listen" to the music, or is it just -there-?

I actually found KBAY to be a foreground station. It played original popular hits as well as selected covers. It dipped into KKSF territory with pop jazz pieces. It even played an occasional show tune. It was borderline eclectic.

Apparently, people listened closely enough for the station to do well for its advertisers, many of whom had been with the station for years and years. It was always sold out.

The station was frequently characterized by people who never bothered to listen to it as "elevator music". It would have had to have been some pretty hip elevator.

During the time I lived in Ukiah, I worked for KLIL, an "easy listening" station.  I and my friends often "DXed" KBAY.  It was amazing to pick it up (for us), being over 150 - 200 miles distant, and Ukiah being in a rather deep valley.  Never-the-less, we got it quite well using a cheap-o Radio Shack 4 element FM beam.  I and many others even picked it up as we drove around town in our cars, although it was spotty in places.

We listened a LOT to KBAY, everything John tells you is true !  It was one heck of a station !!

Perhaps a little less eclectic, but something more than a background music station was the old KCFM in St. Louis up until the late 1970s. It managed to hold its own for a while against KEZK, which was on the old KDNA, and AM station WRTH.

Around 1978, KCFM went to what we would now call a AAA format, calling itself "The Natural Sound." While moderately successful, and quite beloved of some people even to this day, the station's founder decided to retire and sold to Gannett. Gannett, which ruined almost every radio station it ever touched, promptly switched it back to a beautiful-music format, this time much more formulaic and a lot less interesting. It bombed.

Classical KFUO-FM was, at the time, still running tapes from Parkway.

That's what happened with the Florians' WNIB in Chicago, and relatively late, too. Obie Yadgar, who was the morning announcer, went back to Milwaukee but, as I understand it, no longer is on the air. There just isn't much demand for classical announcers.

Amid this discussion of how broad station playlists are, I was in a cafe yesterday picking up a sandwich for lunch when I heard the Eagles' "I Can't Tell You Why." I immediately recognized it as one of the songs that KYUU (KNBR's FM sister station in San Francisco) was playing when I worked there in the summer of 1980. I counted the carts once and figured there were about 400 songs in rotation. Even in those few months, I heard each of them so many times that they now jump out at me 30 years later as being "KYUU songs." :-)

When ARS took over the original KBAY, they gutted the format. It turned into ARS' version of a KOIT sound-alike. The playlist was tightened to less than a couple hundred songs, which of course were played over and over.

That was in the mid-nineties. To this day, when I hear ANY of those songs, I cringe inside, recalling the corporate destruction of the station where I had worked for twenty-three years.

And KYUU was a very popular station at the time.  So, 400 songs is about 30 hours of music without repeats, though most playlists repeat some songs more than others.

It goes back to that mythical waitress in the 1950s playing the same 5 songs from the 200 selection jukebox that was the supposed inspiration for Storz top 40 format.

And of course, 200 songs is the opposite extreme, and would be considered by almost any music programmer, except those aiming at teens, to be too small a list.

As discussed elsewhere, 400-500 songs is a sweet spot for most commercial formats, and some of those songs will be heard more often than others.  There will also be some rotating in and out of such a list.  But the key thing is, they will ALL be hit songs among the station's target audience.

Maybe someone can help me out with something: I'm interested in becoming a radio DJ or going into radio broadcasting. I have a few disabilities that require accommodations so I have asked some people in the industry how this would affect my goal. I haven't received much response from them. Can anyone on here help with this? Please contact me if you have any info...
Thanks

PS. I am in touch with the broadcasting departments at the local colleges and with the disabilities office but I need more input.

My advice as someone who spent over 10 years in broadcasting: don't bother with broadcasting as a career, especially radio. Staffs in radio are about 1/10th of what they were in the glory days. Whereas a smalltown station used to have maybe 8 to 12 people, today it's more likely that same station will be part of a cluster of 3 or more stations with a staff of 5 running the cluster. The DJ jobs will likely be voice tracks from freelancers, and if there are any local DJs they will be the morning person and one at middays. Chances are that the morning DJ will be decently paid and the midday person will not be, but will also double as the program director and maybe the promotions director, too.

On the engineering side, where there used to be one chief engineer per station, it's more likely today that the one engineer is a contract person overseeing 5 or more stations.

Equipment is way more stable today than in yesteryear so there is no need for people to read the meters and babysit the transmitters. On the talent side, with automation and the realization that most listeners don't care if the content comes from a live person or a computer, the need for DJs is near non-existent.

Your best bet is doing non-commercial community radio as a hobby. Seriously.

Assuming that you are in the US....

If you had said this twenty-five years ago, I would have told you that radio is a great place to work.  I have worked with board ops, DJs, and announcers with all sorts of disabilities.  Once had a board op who was blind; we took the glass covers off the console VU meters so he could feel the pins and made sure all of the carts were in the same order every day since he couldn't read the labels on them.  I've had announcers and program directors in wheelchairs, which actually got us to clear some of the crap out of the air studio and make a clear path through it.  Radio is... err... was... one of those fields where it doesn't matter what you look like, who you are, or what disabilities you might have as long as the final result sounds good on the air.

The thing is... the consolidation and deregulation of the past twenty years has really made a mess of things, and that the current point in time I would not recommend radio as a career for _anyone_, disabled or not.  For one thing, those stations that used to have half a dozen announcers and board ops, a transmitter engineer, a traffic director, and a couple sales people on staff are now being run by a single guy playing back crap that comes off the satellite link... with no local station staff, the number of jobs available is a fraction of what it once was, and the jobs are less interesting.

>PS. I am in touch with the broadcasting departments at the local >colleges and with the disabilities office but I need more input.

Does anyone even still HAVE broadcasting departments?  Now, I should point out that if you aren't in the US, but you are in a country with a vibrant and active radio community (and there are a lot of them out there) that perhaps you should disregard what I said.

Go to a radio station and ask for a tour and a job.  That's how everyone starts out....

Indeed! If you bring ANY technical skills to the party, by all means give me a call when I'm back in the office on 4/26! Engineering types have pretty much all jumped ship, but there ARE still stations that appreciate good technical talent.

Meanwhile, there have been stations (even back in the glory days of radio) when they wouldn't let you come in. I got this rude shock when I tried to visit the then KBRG (now KITS). The DJ welcomed me but the op mgr was there and she booted me out the door. "We are a business. We're not an amusement park" (or words to that effect). I was devastated. It took me a long time to work up the nerve to visit another station.

I was working on some computers over at KDIA/KDYA a couple years ago when a guy came in and wanted The Tour. Well, two stations, you'd think there was a lot to see. But, being an automated gospel music station on the one hand and an automated block program station on the other, the guy was basically shown what might be radio if only there were DJs around. He was shown the two empty control rooms, the tech area where I was wiping the dirt and grime off a computer's innards, and the the equipment rack.

I cannot imagine anyone being that odious. When I was in high school and still headed for the world of academe (as least as far as my parents were concerned), I used to visit radio stations for the simple reason that I was fascinated by broadcasting. After explaining my passion for the industry, no ever denied me admission to examine any part of the radio station I wished to see. I was welcome with open arms at every station from San Jose to San Francisco. For instance, I visited KIOI when it was owned by Jim Gabbert (which is when I met him) during most of the time the station was at the Whitcomb Hotel and at 1001 California St.

Needless to say, I have dutifully "paid it forward" whenever I've had the opportunity.

See, you could make that into a fun tour, talking about the history of the station and what used to be in this room and what used to be in that room, and how technology has changed things both for the better and the worse.

When I was a student at the Ron Bailie School of Broadcast in the old 420 Taylor KBHK building we trained in some of the original 1930s NBC control rooms. It was kind of exciting for a broadcast geek to know the history and speculate what those rooms had looked like with equipment from the building's historical NBC era.

I was welcomed to most stations as well.  The first was KEEN on Old Oakland. Then KDAC in Fort Bragg, then KFMR in Fremont.  I spent many times at the KFAX daytime transmitter on the service road next to the San Mateo bridge, watching the board op play back religious programs and time things out with pre-carted promos, and the occasional live news feed from the SF studio.  I visited KYA, KFRC, KDFM, KJAY, KJOY, KSTN, KRON, KPIX, KTVU, KNTV, and I'm sure I'm leaving out a couple here or there.

However, I was not allowed to visit KNBR, KCBS, KGO, KBRG, KLIV, or KLOK.

Would if it were.  The history of KDYA 1190 is Lou Ripa's KNBA in Vallejo with a totally different format and nothing remarkable in its history (unless you consider Lou's morning restaurant interviews of 40 years ago).

KDIA 1640 is an extended band drop-in with no history.  The KDIA callsign used to belong to a totally unrelated station (KMKY 1310).

The offices are in a generic office building in Richmond, which could have been a law firm or any other generic office.

There's no there there.

And this isn't unlike other stations.  Today's radio stations are computers like people have at home, mixing boards like one might see in a DJ booth at a nightclub, though not as sophisticated, transmitters are in distant locations that nobody but the chief engineers visit.  There's really not much to see.

KPPC FM 106.7 Pasadena, Califonia is looking at its 40th Anniversary (from April 1, 1970) when PD Les Carter took his airstaff on an 18 month journey that ended when the entire KPPC air staff was fired by the GM Doug Cox (October 24, 1971) and then in November the ratings came out showing KPPC FM as the number one Rock radio station in Los Angeles for 18 to 34 age Adults. The April 1972 ratings did not even show KPPC listed at all under the direction of Doug Cox. FM 106.7 became KROQ FM 106.7 circa 1973.

Exactly 10 years after KFWB went Top 40, Program Director Tom Donahue debuted his KPPC FM hipster air staff on January 2, 1968 in the basement of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church:

6AM-11AM   LES CARTER (KBCA-FM)
11AM-4PM   ED MITCHELL (KFRC)

|---|---|
| 4PM-9PM | B. MITCHEL REED (KFWB, WMCA) |
| 9PM-MID | TOM DONAHUE (KMPX-FM, KYA) |
| MID-6AM | DON HALL (KPPC-FM) |

The original 1968 KPPC air staff included TED ALVY (Cosmos Topper) and STEVEN SEGAL (The Obscene Steven Clean).

And did working with record cutting lathes and the NBC chimes help you in your broadcasting career?  Fun though it may have been if I'd paid a bundle to go to a private broadcasting school I'd have wanted to be trained on equipment that I would typically deal with.

The only station I found that had old ET equipment from the 30s was KCHJ in Delano, largely because after Charles H. Johnes died in 1968 the family wanted to run the place like a museum.  KCHJ wasn't a typical radio station.

I was rather upset when I was at CSM that we had to deal with antiquated black and white equipment and just one camera with a zoom lens at KCSM-TV.

While we learned about equipment that was fairly state of the art on the radio side (KCSM-FM), we learned zilch about programming because Dan Odum was so fond of his block programming.  Such training prepared us for...uh...KFAX, KEST, and other also-rans, but didn't prepare us for KFRC or any other station that was going anywhere in the market.

Of course, the concept of broadcasting schools is moot today, given that there is simply no need for them anymore, but the equivalent might be going to a computer school and learning how to program on punch cards.

It was just the opposite at SF State. Other than being B&W, the TV studio was one of the best in the state. (And I don't mean just at educational institutions.) But the radio station wasn't real like KCSM; it only went to the dorms. So that equipment was much more modest.

I'm not sure I agree with that. Sure, turntables are gone, as well as tape recorders, but the stations still do the same things and the people who work there are still human beings who work in production, on the air, and deal with remote equipment. I have always been willing to take people to the transmitter sites, some of which offer the most impressive views of the Bay Area.

Sure radio has changed in the way it is technically produced, and those who have resisted those changes have fallen by the wayside. But at those stations that still offer local programming designed to serve listening audiences, what goes on inside the studios would be of interest to anyone still fascinated by radio.

Hell, I'm a seasoned veteran of over forty years and I had the time of my life at the Cure-A-Thon. And that's not to take anything away from the stations I work for, which are constantly coming up with new ways to do programming, in the studio and out in the field at remotes.

As with anything else, broadcasting is what one makes of it.

I'm sorry to say it is that thinking that is pretty much what is wrong with radio today. We have different tools (for the better, mostly) but what is now lacking is the spark of creativity in local stations. It isn't the equipment that is responsible for the lack of new music on radio. It isn't the lack of tape recorders or turntables that have "forced" stations to use syndication rather than do things of interest on their own.

Is there some reason a broadcast school can't teach things like community involvement, or music programming, or even specialized sales tactics that involve clients in improving their own businesses? Now THAT would be a broadcast school. However, as with many others involved with local broadcasting, the schools refused to move on with the times, seeing as their sole responsibility the training of people to cue records and splice tape. Broadcasting schools should have all failed; they were run by people who lacked any kind of vision whatsoever.

We need broadcasting schools today more than ever, but I'm willing to admit that there may be a serious lack of people who are up to the task of running them.

I never found radio stations to be unfriendly places.  But my real introduction to them came from the inside.  We had a neighbor who had a job as morning man at a station 30 miles away, who lost his driver's license for a while, and I ended up taking him to work, and back home afterward for a while.  Which meant that I was on the station premises from sign-on, and in the studio, with a pretty seasoned old-timer, for several hours each morning before driving back to go to school.  In short, a warm body who asked so many questions that he got put to work.

After a few months of this, the general manager, who had a couple of other stations and a TV station, called me in and told me that enough was enough of doubling for the morning man---if I could get an RT license, he could use what I'd learned at his other stations.  So I did, and he did.

This is going back sixty years, when keeping a transmitter modulated meant either spinning platters (all 78's) or talking into a microphone.  The world was full of 250, 500, and 1KW daytimers who needed someone who could walk into an empty building, flip the switches on the transmitter, take the readings, and start modulating the carrier.  Of course, they expected you to do a half-decent job of keeping things alive, following "the book" with spot ads, and the like.  But nobody really cared if you looked like a geeky kid, or could get around physically.  I knew a couple of pros who were in wheelchairs.

Probably aren't many opportunities like this any more, between the large ownership groups, satellite feeds, carts and other automation, etc. etc.  But I had any number of friends over the years who "did radio" at one point or another for a while, but who never really tried to make careers as radio personalities.  But I think there was some good learning in all of that, that carried forward to being able to get up at a podium elsewhere, and do something a bit more cogent than mumble "uh, err, well, like, I mean, you know....".

Radio broadcasting is a mature industry.  There aren't that many different ways to do things.  There are some interesting used of soundscapes, however.

I suggest you listen to "Radio Lab" on KQED Radio.  It's a documentary series that mixes some very clever sound collaging with the meat of the topic.  It comes from WNYC.

Jason Jennings spent a decade training people how to run radio stations.  As you may recall, he was once the youngest group owner, and was a hotshot sales guy.  But he knew management through and through.  Today he's totally out of broadcasting, instead spending his time giving what might be called Q-A seminars to select businesses.  http://www.jason-jennings.com/
I'm mentioning him because his content has always been top-notch, and he charges a bundle for it, out of the reach of most people and corporations. I haven't asked him about why he stopped doing radio management seminars, but I suspect it's because people in radio are cheapskates.

Be sure to check out his videos on his site and on YouTube.  Even the freebies he gives away are thought-provoking.  He's the author of many fascinating books, including, "It's Not The Big That Eat the Small, It's The Fast That Eat the Slow", definitely a must for anybody who manages a business.

I'm told that the commercial broadcasting schools were to varying degrees shuck and jive.  Sure, they might prepare one for a ticket, back when those mattered, but that was about it.

>We need broadcasting schools today more than ever, but I'm willing to

Why do we need broadcasting schools now?  The industry is 1/10th the size it was, and is likely to shrink even more.  Sure, there will be a need for broadcasters just as there's a need for blacksmiths, but I suggest that it's not a wise use of resources to dedicate school curricula to it.

Yeah, and there are museums worth visiting, too.  Your stations are not typical of broadcasting today.  Sure, they've managed to take marginal Class A stations and make them work.  And that's fine.  But it's not what most of radio is about.  Back in the day, that was ALL that radio was about.

I guess we blame it on Bill Drake -- "More music, more music, more music, more music."  For the most part people don't care about DJs and local content. That much is in evidence with the ear buds people wear today.  They ain't listening to the radio...

Read again: I said that it was fun _speculating_ about what would have been there in the NBC days. The actual equipment was not necessarily the very latest, but it was more than adequate to train us in the arts and crafts of contemporary radio broadcasting.

We had recently up to date consoles, we learned how to program cart carousels (which were still in use at many stations, though not for long), we were voice trained, we were trained in spot scripting and production, news writing and delivery, sales (hated it!) sports writing and delivery . .  pretty much the full gamut of what we would encounter in small to medium markets, or for the lucky few, even SF. Among our "finals" was the production of an hour demo in the format of our choice.

Among our instructors were Aldy Swanson of KYUU, former KGO-TV reporter Paul Wynne, and a former PD at KSOL, whose name I don't recall. Oh, and a guy (whose name I should recall but don't) heard on several stations for his sports reports from the Oakland Coliseum.

We were told from the start that we would gain the skills to move into an "entry level" job, most likely way out of the SF market. There were no promises that we'd go to KFRC, KCBS or any other station in the #5 market. We were told to expect to go to Yreka or places like that.

One former student came by during the course and addressed us. At that time he was the #1 morning man in Phoenix, but had worked his way up from small stations in SoCal and Arizona. He also told us that our control rooms were probably average to above average compared to a lot of small stations, and to learn all we could about workarounds for technical problems that might occur.

Ironically, out my class and the one just prior to ours, a sizable handful went to work in one fashion or another in the SF market- most of the rest did little or nothing in broadcasting-- not for lack of opportunity, but for lack of willingness to spend a year or two in Yreka or some similar community-- no love for broadcasting: Fatal.

As it was, I turned down Yreka and Clear Lake because I had a job in this area that I didn't want to leave.

The problem with Bailie and other courses was that the days of local personality radio were coming to an end. The conglomeration of the industry was just beginning, and the school lost relevance within a couple of years after I was there.

In any case, Bailie was a legit operation at that time, and was a stepping stone for many into small to medium market radio and/or TV work-- and for a few it was an entrance directly into the SF market.

I think you've nailed it. Ultimately it is up to local broadcasters to seek out and hire talent- using that word in its dictionary sense. You are right that the schools failed to advance with the times and therefore lost relevance-- although many of the skills I got at Bailie were transferable to a more modern age. Spot scripting, news writing, sports writing and delivery of the same.

I've made some pocket money doing voice work, but I don't want to run a business and chase down jobs, which are necessary if you want to have voicing as your main career. Otherwise, I'm mostly behind the scenes doing technical management that is often over my head. But Bailie was the stepping stone, the piece of paper that let me in the door, even if I'm not doing what I originally set out to do.

I do have to admit that I loved tape splicing, though.

With all due respect, that is spoken just like someone who is not in the business. I am days off the NAB convention floor, and even I was a bit overwhelmed by some of the new tools for production and transmission that have come out in just the past year. I can't imagine anyone currently in the business saying that "there is nothing new under the sun in broadcasting".

I never went near one of those schools. But I cannot imagine that such schools did not teach production, broadcast management, script writing, technical basics, and the various performance techniques. If they didn't teach all of those things, they not only should have failed when they did, but they should never have been in the business in the first place.

Even leaving local broadcasting out of the discussion, are you saying that not a single talented human being is utilized in syndication, satellite and Internet audio services? That's truly incredible.

It was explained to me by the owners of some very successful stations that music is simply the glue that holds what a station really does together and keeps the audience from tuning away. The station interacts with listeners, in person and on the air. The station keeps listeners informed about important local events. The station provides news and timely information to help listeners plan their days and get about smoothly. The station helps its fellow community businesses succeed and prosper, not just by selling spots but by working with them individually to devise and execute a plan which maximizes their success.

How can I get it across to you that radio broadcasting is so much more than playing records into the airwaves? If that's the way you see it, then it is no wonder that you have so little use for it. May I remind you, however, that I am actually working in this industry and I am as enthusiastic about local broadcasting's  role in the community as I have ever been; maybe even more than ever.

Sure, there'll always be new equipment. But, you weren't talking about equipment. You were talking about doing broadcasting -- the production end of it and I was responding to that. I also pointed out the sound collages that "Radio Lab" is doing, which wouldn't have been possible in a pre-digital age, or as easily possible at any rate. You were talking about the teaching of skills that would lead to innovations in programming. That's where I said that broadcasting is a mature industry and that there's only a certain amount of things you can do with the medium.

>I never went near one of those schools. But I cannot imagine that such

When I did a talkshow at KKEY, we had interns from a commercial broadcasting school, I think it was Columbia. The bulk of what the interns knew were board opping and talking into a mic. Broadcast management? Shirley, you jest.

>If they didn't >teach all of those things, they not only should have failed when they

Remember the ads? They showed some guy in a booth talking into a mic and moving a fader and clicking a switch. "Hi, this is Joe Schmuck. You can be on the air just like me..." They never showed anybody looking at Arbitron printouts, writing checks, or for that matter even looking into the back of a transmitter. They always showed the DJ. So, this was not false nor misleading advertising. They taught people who to be DJs in an already overcrowded field of DJs.

>Even leaving local broadcasting out of the discussion, are you saying >that not a single talented human being is utilized in syndication,

No, but I believe in what Rich Wood (syndicator of Sally Jessy Raphael, Wolfman Jack, and a ton of other people, along with op mgr for XETRA, WOR, etc) has always said: "I can teach people how to do radio, but only if they have something to say when they open the mic."

But again, you led off the reply with talk about equipment and finished with talk about production. Equipment is not mature, production is, for the most part.

In your 1977 world, yes, but people simply don't listen that way any longer. Yes, there are your stations, which do that sort of thing, but the majority of big stations are jukeboxes.

Take news for instance.  Most stations have ONE news person for a cluster of 4 or 5, and they usually do the mornings and record some drop-ins for other hours if they offer them at all.  In our day, say 1977, KIOI had one news person and KFRC had at least 5.

For someone so close to broadcasting you don't seem to be seeing what's been going on.  First, you didn't even know that stations, even your suburban ones, tested music before they played it.  You thought that it was purely seat of the pants decisions!  And you're right up there in it every day and you didn't know this.

I suggest that if you want to learn a little more about the production side of broadcasting you talk with people in the business as I do, and find out what's going on.

>The station helps its fellow community businesses succeed and Again, that's not how most of the big stations work.  Sure, they'll join the local chamber of commerce and donate money to the Little League, but gone are the days when KKSF used to bankroll ambient music CDs to benefit AIDS charities.  Today, KGO stands out as one of the few big stations anywhere that does anything for its community.  But look at the other Citadel stations -- I don't even think KABC or WABC have any live local talent at all anymore, except maybe a weekend gardener infomercial talkshow.

>How can I get it across to you that radio broadcasting is so much more >than playing records into the airwaves?

In your world it is, but step outside your world and it's jukeboxes. Hell, listen to KOIT, the most successful music station in town for over a decade and what is it? It's a jukebox that sounds automated even when it's live. The extent of community service they do is reading 2 PSAs an hour and giving the weather forecast, something that could be done from Albuquerque.

Again, as I said to JH in another post, the ads were not false or misleading.
They did teach people how to be DJs.

Well, in my reality, I know that it is a very foolish thing to even imply that all that can be has been invented when it comes to broadcast technology. A little voice also tells me that there will always be room for production and content innovation as well.

Would Mike Amatori, production director of KGO, San Francisco do, or his associate Craig Bowers? We talk about this all the time. Actually, I imagine you are joking...since I have been in this business full-time for over forty years, and it would be inconceivable that I would not speak with those by whom I am surrounded on an everyday basis, don't you think?

This is true, but it's also a really bad thing.

The vast majority of radio stations on the air don't actually provide any real benefit to the public. They aren't relevant to the listener, and people don't specifically tune into them. They just happen to hit the station for their normal 2.4 minutes as they are scanning their way down the dial.

What makes it sucessful, though? Do people really go out of their way to listen to it, or do they just happen to turn it on because it's the loudest thing on the dial as they tune by and it happened to be playing a song they like?

>From my perspective, I think much of what is wrong with radio is that the bands are too crowded with stations that are all playing the same song at the same time.  I think the only thing that will save radio is for the marginal stations to go dark.  We need to see a _lot_ of stations going dark.

THAT is interesting.  That's something worth talking about... how we got into the situation where the whole extended band was created.  THAT is an important part of radio history.

What is interesting about the station isn't anything that is in the station itself, it's how the industry got to be where it is and how the station got to be there.  It doesn't look very exciting and the tour itself isn't much, but there's a lot of interesting stuff that happened in order to get things to the point of that PC automation system sitting in an office park.

No, but there's a _lot_ to talk about.  Everything is in little boxes in racks that look like every other rack in every other industry, but how it got to be that way is the story of radio.

But you didn't even know that your own stations test their music before playing it. You thought they operated on hunches. If you didn't know this fundamental aspect of today's programming, there's probably more things about modern radio that you don't know.

Okay, I went to school with Mike Amatori. I want to be as supportive as possible, but unfortunately, when it comes to production he's fairly blind to modern ideas and techniques. His stuff, unfortunately, sounds 40 years out of date. Frankly, he's not very good. His delivery is singsongy. He makes little use of music beds, no use of sound effects, speed changes, etc. Heck, there are spots he could do with multiple voices, back and forth banter, lots of things, but he just knocks out the same old same old day after day.

We can wish for things to be like the good old days or we can embrace change and change with it.  Those who long for the good old days eventually wind up as bitter folks, muttering to themselves or babbling incoherently.

I happen to like jazz.  I have put on over 400 live shows in the past 10 years showcasing all kinds of interesting music, much of which didn't find an audience because it's not hip-hop and it's not garage rock.  But then I live in a real world and realize that what I'm doing is in the fringe.  I know that I'm not going to sell out any 1200 seat venues with the things I book.

I could be commercially successful as a promoter and book hip-hop, garage rock, and "dance music", or I could continue on my fringe track and enjoy what I'm doing, even if it's often more a hobby than a money maker.

Today's radio is what it is.

I think people listen to KOIT because it plays familiar tunes in a non-offensive way.  Years of success have proven that people don't particularly care for chatter, news, or much else beyond the time and a weather forecast.

The history is this: Extended band channels were offered to daytimers under the promise that they would abandon their daytime channels and go fulltime in the extended band.  I believe KNBA 1190 was the first or second station to take up this offer to move to 1640.  But they never left 1190.  I forget the excuse they used.

So, what kind of tour could KDIA/KDYA do?  "See, we have two stations because we promised we'd move from one channel to the other and they we went back on our word."  I don't think that would play very well.

>What is interesting about the station isn't anything that is in the station

But when people go visit a station they want something fancy and technical and unlike their ordinary lives.  What I'm saying is that what they're going to see in a radio station is nothing that far removed from what they see elsewhere.  Radio is a mature medium.  There's not much more that can be done with it.  It's like Microsoft Word 2002.  It's a mature product and all that can be done now is tweaking the bells and whistles, and moving the furniture around.

>No, but there's a _lot_ to talk about.  Everything is in little boxes in Generally speaking, history is not a way to interest someone in a career. History tends to be the domain of old folks.  I didn't realize this until quite recently when a friend didn't want to go visit a private library with me to look up old books and magazines about the history of BART.  He's a transit buff, but had no interest in learning about BART's past, only what they're currently doing and how they can change things to make it better in the future.  He's, uh, maybe 25 or so.

I dare say. Anyone who thinks he knows everything is deluding himself on a grand scale. However, unless you are asserting that I suffer from diminished faculties, I would imagine that I am in a far better position to absorb and assess the state of broadcasting's art, in any department, over one who hasn't been near a broadcast position in a couple of decades, give or take.

That "fundamental aspect" you refer to was something I discovered on my own through casual across the hall inquiry. To me, it was a minor point. But I guess I can understand why you cling to it as some sort of evidence of my abysmal knowledge of the broadcast industry. You don't ask if the air is any good when it is all there is to breathe.

> Okay, I went to school with Mike Amatori. I want to be as supportive as possible, but unfortunately, when it comes to production he's fairly blind to modern ideas and techniques. His stuff, unfortunately, sounds 40 years out of date.

Mike is at the top of his game. His creativity is on display for all to hear, all the time. I have yet to hear one single piece of production from you. You'll excuse me if I tend to give a bit more weight to his industry views than I do to yours. With all due respect, of course.

> Frankly, he's not very good. His delivery is singsongy. He makes little use of music beds, no use of sound effects, speed changes, etc. Heck, there are spots he could do with multiple voices, back and forth banter, lots of things, but he just knocks out the same old same old day after day.

Then you're not listening (and I think you have made it very clear that you don't, at least not to KGO). You have pretty much the same view of my work in the industry as well, but then I just consider the source. Criticism from one who is not in a position to know is not taken very seriously.

Well.... yes.... but.... I don't think I'd want to interest someone in a career in radio today.

But I might want to give them a tour that would make them think about how messed up the whole radio industry is....

Times do change. I wouldn't want to interest someone in blacksmithing as a career, either, even though those who are willing to weather the vagaries of the profession and who are at the top of their game can make 3-figure incomes doing it.
